60 cars at a time have used a three-mile stretch of 1-696 from Northwest Highway to Orchard Lake Rd. for drag racing.

The west-bound lane is said to be blocked by the drag racers on Thursday nights after a large group of cars gathers in Southfield.

Reportedly gambling on the outcome of the races occurred, with several hundreds of dollars bet.

The article claims that engineers from Detroit auto makers race on the freeway besides teenagers.

DRAG RACING is an "everyday occurrence" in the township, according to Sgt. Newell, but there have been no complaints from residents along the freeway.

The head of the township's traffic division commented he feels sure complaints would reach the township if drag racing on the freeway has been going on for months.

Many tickets are issued for racing in the township, but most racers are difficult to catch even if an officer arrives on the scene minutes after a race.

The freeway is patrolled by the state, not the township. Newell says only one car assigned to 1-96 and 1-696 is adequate.

DRAG STRIPS where racers can legally work out their mighty autos are scarce around the automobile capital of the world. Flat Rock is the closest track.

A strip in the area would get lots of use, Sgt. Newell predicted, but might not be a going financial concern.

Farmington City Director of Public Safety, Robert DeMatman explained not much drag action takes place in the city because only two streets are long enough for top acceleration.

Tickets are issued regularly, however, under a special drag racing ordinance which can cost the racer up to $500 and 90 days in jail.
