A Thread Runs Through This Political Picnic

By TIM RICHARD

At a political picnic, you can tell (a) who's running for reelection and (b) who's seeking higher office by what they wear. Take the Republican 19th Congressional District picnic last Sunday attended by 500 of the party faithful at the John F. Ivory Farm in Commerce Township.

State Sen. George Kuhn of West Bloomfield and Rep. Ray Baker of Farmington were there in neatly pressed suits and ties. Conclusion: They're keeping the fences mended but not seeking higher office.

WAYNE COUNTY Supervisor Carl Pursell, whose district includes Livonia and Plymouth, was there in Bermuda shorts and a very casual, Conclusion: He's keeping in touch, but doesn't dress like he's after Kuhn's Senate seat, although he's getting encouragement.

Livonia Mayor Harry Moelke wants a new term judging from the press of his ensemble and the fact that he had made a Democratic picnic the weekend before. Jim O'Neill, State Board of Education member and a Livonia resident, was neatly dressed, but his wardrobe was unobtrusive. Another bid for a Senate nomination seems unlikely.

REP. WELDON Yeager, of northwest Detroit, crossed a congressional district line to attend this picnic and was smartly groomed. Conclusion: Suspicions confirmed that he will seek the GOP nomination for secretary of state against Jim Hare.

Only one man, however, appeared in a white shirt and tie. That was Dr. Leroy Augenstein, like O'Neill a member of the State Board of Education. Augenstein is often mentioned as a Senate possibility against Phil Hart next year.

Asked why he was dressed like a Senate candidate at a picnic, Augenstein just blushed and grinned, and said: "I've got to give a speech this evening."

Motorcycle Patrol For Hines

Edward Hines Parkway will soon be patrolled by a couple of motorcycle officers.

The Wayne County Sheriff's Department road patrol got approval for purchase last week from the Board of Supervisors.

The motorcycles will be used throughout the county park system, but the biggest emphasis will be on the 27-mile-long Hines Parkway, which parallels the Middle Rouge River from Northville through Plymouth and Westland to Dearborn Heights.

The motorcycles can reach unimproved park areas that are beyond the reach of automobiles, said Inspector John C. DeVos.

"And there are so many motorcycles on the road nowadays that we have to be able to keep up with them," the officer in charge of the road patrol added.

The sheriff's road patrol has five trained motorcyclists among its officers.

Title Fees Are Doubled

LANSING Inflation has hit the vehicle title business.

Starting Aug. 15 in implementation of Act 93 of the current Legislature, vehicle owners began paying $2 for titles. Previously, title fees were $1.

Revenue for the state highway fund from title fees totalled $2.6 million last year based on 2,263,745 title transactions and late fees. Fees are expected to be close to the $5 million mark for the current fiscal year.
