

Avon offers space

Georgetown Commons in Avon Township offers large home sites neighboring a 10-acre wooded park that has been set aside for the residents.

This natural preservation is a source of added value to the homes, as well as a place for families to relax.

The builders offer traditional and custom exteriors; the selections are coordinated to insure unrepeatable architectural feeling between houses. Houses are priced from $67,400.

A two-story conservatory with its own heating-cooling system is a special optional feature of the Jamestown model. It extends the living area of the house off the kitchen and breakfast nook. There is also a view into the conservatory from one of the upstairs bedrooms. The Jamestown, with its four bedrooms and 2½ baths, also has a family room with a fireplace and wet bar, a library, separate dining room and patio.

Located four miles from I-75 on Tienken Road between Livernois and Adams roads, Georgetown is in the Rochester school district and near Oakland University. Religious, recreational, cultural and shopping facilities are near.

117 Plymouth houses

Four new models mark the opening of Plymouth's Beacon Hill Estates. This community has 117 home-sites.

Some features of these homes include winding staircases, sunken family rooms, master bedrooms with sitting rooms, walk-in closets and optional wet bars.

The atmosphere of Plymouth is present all around, from the shopping area of downtown to the educational, cultural, religious and entertainment facilities.

Beacon Hill is one mile west of Plymouth; take Ann Arbor Trail.
