CONTOURED

The shape of things to come in spring and summer fashion will be part of what distinguishes what's in with those in the fashion know.

Designers and manufacturers will feature handsome, well tailored clothes that emanate a natural air of elegance. They'll be classy enough to be appropriate on any occasion.

John Thawley, Birmingham couturier, has taken this philosophy a step further. He has achieved a contour that creates a flowing movement—a oneness of the fabric to the body.

He has also allowed for an expression of self through fine fashions that supersedes the most glamorous events of any season.

A classic navy twill double-breasted six button blazer, shows two to button, with peak lapels and open-patch pockets. He shows it with silver-grey flannel slacks at $325 for the outfit.

For the gentleman, one can choose a one button peak lapel gray suit in three pieces, accented with a black pin-stripe. The vest is double-breasted. Other one-button suits feature jetted-pockets and more peak lapels and the new pleated and cuffed trousers. Prices top $300.

Also accenting the move to light-light colors for warmer weather, an off-

An off-white three-piece suit sports a white pin stripe and peak lapels.

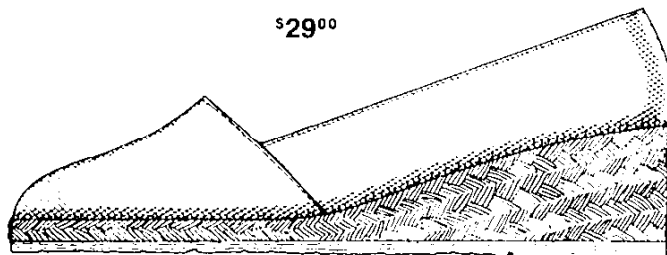

You can team a classic navy twill double-breasted six-button blazer with silver-grey flannel slacks.
