

A double-breasted blazer in polyester and wool, and plaid polyester pants represents a sure-fire smart look for men this spring, while the new cotton short sleeve jacket and matching pants picks up another good way to go.

prints like a kid to candy. For daytime, chiffon is a marvelous scarf fabric. After five it goes into more glamorous and fuller use.

For summer, flower patterns show up as wide borders on the colorful peasant styles and bathing suits literally swim with bright colors that flow one shade into another in abstract merry-go-rounds.

Plan your wardrobe for spring as you would a flower garden. Sort through the annuals (new each year) and the perennials (year after year dependables). Think about color—the brush stroke of mauve that picks up white like a magnolia bloom; or run a vibrant shade from one end of the tone scale to the other as the marigolds do. Soften color schemes just a bit for evening—like the four o'clocks and come on in the morning with strong, clear strokes like tulips.

Picture yourself where you want to be and how you want to look—and then blossom.
