POLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

A MOTHER wants to be sure and certain that the medicine she gives her child is safe. She wants no upstater or habit forming drugs. She wants a medicine that she knows other mothers have used with satisfaction and success.

Mothers Commend Poley's

Such a family cough and cold remedy is Poley's Honey and Tar Compound. It meets quarrelly and satisfactorily every demand a mother can make as to purity and wholesomeness. It is cleanly made of the very best ingredients which she would use herself if she could always get them in a fresh and pure condition.

When she insists on Poley's Honey and Tar she gets it at a moderate price (less than she would pay if she bought it separately) and mixed them together in standard medicine that has been successfully in thousands of homes many years - a medicine that experience proves to be the best for children.

Safest For Children

Mother who have not known Poley's Honey and Tar will come away if an ever so small child by accident. It is clean and pure, and it is the most delicate stomachic. It is a family cough and cold remedy that should be kept in the family medicine chest. It is a family remedy that will cure a child's cough and cold.

Mrs. M. R. Wilber informs us that twice the boys have raised the windows of the Baptist church and gone in to ring the bell. While she has no objection to that, she thinks the least they could do would be to leave the church to their friends. She was informed both times that the windows had been left wide open, and she had to go and shut them down. If the boys want to ring the bell the key to the church can be procured by going to William Harlan or Mrs. Wilber, which would be a much nicer way to enter.

FARMINGTON, MICHIGAN

HUNGER DRAWS THE MAP

A food map of Europe today shows not a single country in which the future does not hold threat of serious difficulties and only a small part which is not rapidly approaching the famine point. With the exception of the Ukraine only those countries which have maintained marine commerce have sufficient food supplies to meet actual needs until next harvest, and even in the Ukraine, with stores accumulated on the farms, there is famine in the large centers of population. Belgium and northern France, as well as Serbia, appear on the hunger map distinct from the rest of Europe because they stand in a different relation from the other nations to the people of the United States. America has for four years maintained the small war rations of Belgium and northern France and is already making special efforts to care for their increased after-war needs, which, with those of Serbia, must be included in this plan, are urgent in the extreme and must have immediate relief. The gratitude of the Belgian nation for the help America has extended to her during the war constitutes the strongest appeal for us to continue our work there. The moment the German armies withdrew from her soil and she was established once more in her own seat of government the little nation's first thought was to express her gratitude to the Commission for Relief in Belgium for preserving the lives of millions of her citizens. Germany, on the other hand, need not argue for such a map for Americans because there is no present indication that she will be called on at all to take thought for the food needs of Germany. Germany probably can spare for her own food problem if she is given access, a shipping and is enabled to distribute food to the cities with dense populations, which are the trouble centers. England, France, the Netherlands and Portugal, all of which have been maintained from American supplies, have sufficient food to meet immediate needs, but their future presents serious difficulties. The same is true of Spain and the northern neutral countries—Norway, Sweden and Denmark—whose ports have been open and who have been able to draw to some degree upon foreign supplies. Most of Russia is already to the throes of famine, and 40,000,000 people there are beyond the possibility of help. Before another spring thousands of them inevitably must die. This applies as well to Poland and practically throughout the Baltic regions, with conditions most serious in Finland, Bohemia, Serbia, Rumania and Montenegro have already reached the famine point and are suffering a heavy toll of death. The American population is falling each week as hunger takes its toll, and to Greece, Albania and Rumania so serious are the food shortages that famine is near. Although starvation is not yet imminent, Italy, Switzerland, Bulgaria and Turkey are, in the throes of serious stragglers. In order to fulfill America's pledge to world relief we will have to export every ton of food which can be handled through our ports. This means at the very least a minimum of 50,000,000 tons compared with 6,000,000 tons pre-war exports and 11,820,000 tons exported last year, when we were bound by the ties of war to the European allies. If we fail to lighten the black spots on the hunger map or if we allow any portions to become darker the very people for whom we fought and bled will be threatened. Revolt and anarchy inevitably follow famine. Should this happen we will see in other parts of Europe a repetition of the Russian debacle and our fight for world peace will have been in vain.
