Should Read Mrs. Monahan's Letter Published by Her Permission

Mitchell, Ind.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound helped me much during the time I was looking forward to the coming of my little one that I am recommending it to other mothers. Before taking it, I suffered with neuralgia so badly that I thought I could not live, but after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was entirely free of neuralgia, I had gained in strength and was able to go to my housework. My baby when seven months old weighed 15 pounds and is better than I have ever had. I never had any medicine so me so much good."—Mrs. PEARL MONAHAN, Mitchell, Ind.

HAD WORK FOR THE "DOCTOR" Indiana Woman's Request Should Have Put End to Annoying Insistence on Telephone.

In South Bend they have many parts telephones. A man on one says never to talk to her sister. Often their conversation is interrupted by a young treble voice demanding the line "to call the doctor."

Wonderful Instinct. Two city fathers were standing in the market place beside a pile of cabbages. A naturalist passed by, and noticed that a Flaris butterfly had alighted on the leaf of one of the cabbages.

A woman's intellect is seldom up to her conversational ability.

As Man to Man

By STEVE McHENRY

While the north-bound limit was allowing the thrust of its pining engine at the smokestack depot, said something to one of my deputies about Indians being on a rampage. He shot of trying to add details when the shout of an automatic conductor cut short his efforts and started the long train northward.

Later in the day, old Jim Cornish, who runs several herds in the Tres Hermanas, dropped into my office and regaled me with a harrowing tale of pillage and murder. It was conveyed to me, he said, over the long-distance telephone, by one of his line riders.

Jim declared that, judging from the man's choice of comparatively moderate words, he must have gone to the depot, to be refreshed with that particular brand which its thrifty proprietor is wont to keep on tap for the composure of the region. Thus he placed some credence in the report.

He said that some of the men were on duty with longpry freedom, and led by a half-breed more cunning than his followers, were traveling in this direction, avoiding towns, but swooping down on isolated ranches, ready to murder their captives as they drove off their stock.

"Probably one harmless red-skin, filled with freewater, strayed from the reservation, and, in whooping things up, he got into some of our hands," I told my deputies.

At my rate, because a show of official interest was desirable, I promised the old man to let him know if anything happened, and I asked the boys to stay around the area that night.

"Hullo! Sheriff's office!" bawled a nervous voice at the other end. "There's been a shooting scrape here. A man's dead—both—drunk."

I interrupted the man's incoherent account by roaring for the receiver to be taken up. "What's the matter?" he asked, and where you're at.

"This is Malone's—just across the ditch. It was One Eye Pete."

catch your man, and you'll have one you will." With that heest wish in my mind, I left the place and started for the fringe of trees which marked Bear Creek. As for the man I wanted, I had never seen him, but his reputation was familiar to me. His black record, he had neither hanged a woman nor fought infamy.

Strepit ahead, I saw the dark line hugging the water. To the right, only the endless plain; to the left, the same thing. There was a light away in the distance in a spot where no light had business to be.

It alternately grew brighter and dimmer, and, at times, it teaped high into the black air. Straining my eyes, I imagined that I could see the stonous appearance of bigy tongue. I concluded that some poor settler's bar was going up in smoke. Then I struck spurs to my pony.

A minute later a fearful thought gripped me. My own home was due west, right there that fire—but, my God! It could not be!

I stared for an instant, as if fascinated. Then came action. The fugitive and his crime were forgotten. I was the fact that I wore a sheriff's shield. I settled myself in the saddle, the rowels bit deep and I was off like the wind across gullies and sudden narrows; through hog-wallows, filled with the powdery dust of seasons, over treacherous bays of prairie dogs, whose fatal barrows my pony missed as if by instinct, straight for that baleful glow which seemed to grow more distant with every leap.

While still within the fire's zone of his blackness, and just outside of the flames' glow, I jumped from my horse and ran toward the house. In the space between the smoldering building and the blazing barn, I saw several people, their faces pale as death, their hands distorted with the hideous signs of the beastly human gale. Beyond them, undamaged because of its thick adobe walls, stood the squat smokehouse.

Have crossed this open space would have meant death. Knowing this, I made for the shadow near the side door.

"Just as I reached the door, I stopped, for there came the faintest of sounds, the unmistakable cry of a child. It came from the direction of the smokehouse. Then dawned on me the reason for the apparent lack of Indian war wisdom. It showed the meaning of the being up. He knew that no mother will flee while her child is in danger.

I made up my mind to enter the house secure my wife, and pick off these valagorulous savages one at a time; but I was destined to take no hand in this fight.

"Stay where you are! I'll bring her to you!" At the first word the savages wheeled and made as if to charge him, but he levelled his muzzle, blasted such a steady stream of hot lead that they scattered.

DAIRY FACTS

PROPER SELECTION OF BULL One of the Most Important Considerations for Improvement of Herds—Look to Records.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Since the use of watered-down pure-bred bulls is the means by which members of a bull association expect to improve their live stock, one of the many important considerations in the selection of the bulls, such bulls improve the herds, all the association interest increases in proportion to the improvement obtained.

On the other hand, poor bulls cause the interest to decrease accordingly. If a poor dairy bull is used the milk production of the members' herds is lessened, the interest is lessened, and these conditions may lead to the breaking up of the association.

Speech a tried or tested bull can be depended upon with great certainty to cause improvement in the herds. The owner of a tried bull, however, usually knows the record of the animal's daughters and rightfully asks a high price for him. The high cost often makes it difficult for the purchaser to purchase such bulls for the association, and instead they buy younger and untried bulls whose ancestors have made good production records.

The state agricultural college may be in a position to assist in looking up pedigrees and records and always should be consulted. As soon as the money has been provided for the purpose, it is advisable for the association to obtain a set of "Advanced Register" or "Register of Merit" books either by purchase or by exchange.

Information in regard to the cost of "Advanced Register" and breed-registry books may be obtained from the breed associations as follows: American Jersey Cattle Club, 324 West Twenty-third Street, New York, N. Y.

American Guernsey Cattle Club, Peterboro, N. H. Holstein-Friesian Association of America, Brattleboro, Vt. Ayrshire Breeders' Association, Brandon, Vt. Brown-Swiss Cattle Breeders' Association, Beloit, Wis.

In choosing the bulls careful attention should be given to the line of breeding represented in their pedigrees. Bulls should be made to select bulls that have the same family lines in order that fine breeding may be practiced when the bulls are changed. Before the bulls are finally purchased plenty of time should be given to selecting the line of breeding desired.

Although records of production are very important, it is very necessary also that the bulls selected have plenty of strength, great vigor and good body conformation. If the members are not experienced in buying cattle, it is well to ask the state agricultural college for advice and assistance in making the selection.

In buying bulls special care should be taken to see that the animals chosen are healthy and especially that they are free from the infection of either tuberculosis or contagious abortion. If possible the bulls should be purchased from herds accredited by the bureau of animal industry as being free from tuberculosis. A list of such herds may be obtained from the nearest college for advice and assistance from an accredited herd purchaser from a breeder who will furnish satisfactory evidence that the animals have passed the tuberculin test and have been vaccinated to that test.

COMB SAGE TEA FOR FADED OR GRAY HAIR

If Mixed with Sulphur It Darkens so Naturally Nobody can Tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By using at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or apply with your fingers through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

URIC ACID IN THE SYSTEM BY LEE H. SMITH, M. D.

Uric acid is now generally recognized as the cause of more diseases than was heretofore believed. When the kidneys are out of order uric acid accumulates with the body in superabundance. The disordered kidneys do not filter the poisons out of the blood, as they ought to do, and so the poisons remain in the blood and float around until they find a place to lodge, in form of urate salts.

The trouble is in the kidney, and what is the first thing to do? You must get that excess uric acid out of your system, which can be done by taking Anuric Tablets, the splendid remedy which Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., has put on sale in the drug stores at a low price. Anuric Tablets (made of pure salts) when taken into the system as medicine, have the peculiar power of dissolving the uric acid deposited there. Drop a bit of sugar-salt into hot water and you will see it disappear. In precisely the same way do these Anuric Tablets dissolve uric acid. Of course, after ridding the system of uric acid you may return again, unless you eat the right foods and live the right kind of life, but Dr. Pierce will advise you fully on proper food and correct living if you write and ask him. He makes no charge for such advice. Take Anuric Tablets today, by all means, and get that uric acid out of your system. Don't, don't, don't put the matter off.
