TURN "BUSY BERTHAS" INTO VICTORY MEDALS

Workers of the Victory Liberty Loan Will Be Decorated for Helping Uncle Sam in the Big Victory Drive.

The "busy Berthas" that spat their hell at Verdun are silent. Their fate has been decreed. They are to become medals of honor forwarded to the treasury department and volunteers in the Victory Liberty loan army. The mighty Krupp masterpieces are being melted up to make Victory Liberty loan medals. On one side of the medal will be a reproduction of the Treasury building, and on the reverse side will be certification of the worker's participation in the loan drive. Space is left for the name of the recipient, to be engraved on the medal. The medal will be about the size of a half-dollar.

Purchasers of Victory loan securities will not receive these medals, as the bonds are intrinsically worth all the buyer pays. However, those who volunteer to sell the Victory issue to their neighbors and associates will be awarded one of these medals. The only restriction is that the medal will go only to those who in advance of the drive are authorized to perform the work of distributing the Victory Liberty loan among the people.

If you want one of those medals, your Distinguished Service Cross as it were, for service in Uncle Sam's fighting army, it behooves you to hustle over and see the chairman of your Victory Liberty loan campaign and tell him you are on the job.

Some of the medals have just reached the Second Federal reserve district. A large quantity of them will be available for distribution before the campaign begins.

Do Chickens Pay on the Average Farm?

It all depends on the farmer. If he looks on chickens as a nuisance, they don't pay. If he pays a little attention to them they pay a big return for the effort.

There are two things to point to in making poultry raising a success—earlier hatches and more winter eggs.

How can a farmer get them?

First and foremost by having a substantial, air tight, warm, sunny, well ventilated Poultry House. And such a house quickly pays for itself with eggs bringing the prices they do now.

White Pine is the best wood for the outside of a poultry house because it stays where you put it without warping or shrinking or rotting. It's easy to work and easy on tools.

White Pine farm buildings are permanent. They last a lifetime, with practically no outlay for repairs.

Our service makes building easy and inexpensive. We have plans, specifications and bill of material for the Poultry House shown above—or for any type you may prefer. We will gladly give you an estimate of the cost.

Whatever your building plans, come in and talk them over with us.
