My Fight With the Middleman

A CITY MARKET

GRADING AND PACKING

Several years ago, in response to the urge then prevalent of "Back to the Farm," I traded my large city property for an 80-acre apple farm in the Ozark mountains. This farm had once been exceedingly valuable, but under a non-tenant it had been allowed to degenerate till it was almost valueless. I took possession in July, and the gross receipts for sales that fall from the entire acreage fell less than $20—less than a dollar an acre in income.

I had moved to the farm with my family and I devoted that winter to studying apple culture. I procured and read all the pamphlets issued by the national government and the state on this subject and corresponded with successful apple growers. By spring I felt myself competent to assume control. Under my direction was graded and plowed the orchard and jarred up for sales that fall from the entire acreage less than $20—less than a dollar an acre in income.

I realized now that it was necessary to appeal for help. I did so. Upon the suggestion of the state board of agriculture I secured the services of a young man just graduated from the college of agriculture, where he had spent four years in studying fruit raising, particularly apples. He came to the farm in January and I let once put him in complete charge.

He knew his business. I believed in him from the start. I watched him prune the trees with an inspiration. He took the utmost care not to infect one tree from another, using aseptic solutions with his tools. He cut the trees till I feared there would be little left. But most of all he admitted what was his method of determining when and how to spray. From the various trees he cut cultures which he forced to grow in fruit jars, and watched them for the development of the various kinds of diseases. With this knowledge he set his time for spraying, and mixed his ingredients to fit the special cases.

The result was astounding; that very year we harvested more than $2,000 worth of apples, and more than three-fourths of them were of first grade. My old farmer neighbors who had laughed at the "college fellow" who ran his orchard like a business, declared that he was right and asked him to give them suggestions with their own fruit.

But not yet had I succeeded; for I learned that while he had raised apples, he would also learn how to market them. We sold them through the usual channels of the jobbers in the large cities, and our income for the year amounted to but slightly more than $1,900—just 20 cents a bushel on the average for first-class fruit.

The jobbers reported to us that our shipments came at a time of glutted market, and were so badly damaged on the way that they had to be sacrificed. One carload of Jonathans which I had carefully selected and packed myself, knowing they were a poor quality, was turned into vinegar as being too small and too poor to be sold for eating; at any rate that was the report sent Value Increasing. "Do you know that I feel like 30 cents?" said Jack to Ethel. Then Ethel sweetly smiled and commented: "Well, yes, everything costs to have gone up since the war."—Freeman Shield.

Save the Babies

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen.

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infant deaths are occasioned by Drops, Indigestion and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints. Castoria is a safe, reliable, and effective remedy. It is a natural, healthy, and wholesome medicine. It is a safe, reliable, and effective remedy. It is a natural, healthy, and wholesome medicine.

if You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in a strengthening kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcels post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose five cent postage in paper, large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

MOVE TO REVISE CALENDAR

Advocates of Change Will Bring the Matter to Attention of League of Nations.

One of the first projects to be laid before the League of Nations, when it gets ready for business, is one to revise the calendar and make it uniform throughout the world. Bureau officials of the United States, Switzerland and Great Britain got into touch with church officials before the war on the subject of "leap year" revision, and have kept up consideration of the matter since. Church leaders say an agreement has been reached and a uniform report is nearly ready to go to the league.

The calendar has not been revised before because of objections from the churches to date for the great religious feasts. These objections are said to be ready. A first date for Easter, the adding of a thirteenth month, the making of every week begin with Sunday and having exactly 28 days in each month—these are the main features agreed on. Church people favoring the revision say that if the league itself cannot act, it can designate a calendar congress to do so, to sit at Geneva.

Paradoxical Business

"Have you many sittings in your studio?" "No, yes; I have a number of standing orders."

NOT STRONG ON GRATITUDE

Careless Driver Apparently Unable to See Wherein He Had Been Given Any Help.

The horse had run away, and was tangled up in the wire fence at the side of a muddy road. A half-witted owner had kicked and kicked and tried to lift the animal till he was out of sorts and covered with mud. A well-grounded man came along, took in the situation and suggested: "Spring the fence back, then he can get his feet free." The owner of the horse did as he was told. "Now give him a cut with the whip and he'll get up himself." This the owner also did. Then he looked at the horse, up and ready for travel, looked at himself, covered with mud, and looked at the immaculate gentleman in the road. Wrath filled his soul. "Well, he grumbled, 'thank you just as much as if you'd helped me.'"

Edicated Clerks

Two Terré Haute school teachers, both college graduates, spent a recent day in a Chicago bakery. One day they sold several articles to two customers. The bill came to exactly 95 cents and both were elated, because of the size of the sale. They were further elated when they heard one of the women remark to the other one that they left the clerk: "They must have educated clerks here now. Did you notice that they counted up the bill in their heads instead of using a piece of paper as the old ones did?"

Strangers Prepared For

"Does this dog growl?" asked the lady of the dog dealer. "Oh, yes, mam." Was the answer. "Well, I want a dog that doesn't growl." "Don't you want something that will growl at strangers?" "Yes, mam." "My husband will attend to that."

'Twasn't a Bird

Something had gone sadly wrong in the postoffice, and various employees hustled hither and thither and knitted their brows in attempts to ascertain what was what. A postman, who had just returned from the office, was asked by one of the employees: "What was that?" "It was a bird," he replied. "I certainly am sorry the poor thing got hurt," humbly replied the postmaster. "You know what an oriole is, don't you, Mr. Springsteen?"

"Oh, yes, I know, it's a bird," came the proud reply.

"No, I'm sure," said Mrs. M. "It is one of those baby carts that fold up."
