The state board of health is urging the utmost care in the prevention of diphtheria. In many of the counties of the state diphtheria is prevalent. A part of the suggestions being sent out are as follows:—Take no chances. Give the public the benefit of any doubt. It is far better that one child or one family be inconvenienced for a few days than that an entire community be subjected to an epidemic that would cost thousands of dollars in money and is almost sure to cost several lives.

War and After War

For one year the Bell Telephone System, as well as other telephone, telegraph, cable and radio systems, was under control and supervision of the government of the United States. This was a war measure, designed to give the war agencies of the country the fullest use of all facilities of communication.

During this time the normal development and expansion of all telephone systems was necessarily subordinated to governmental needs. Materials and equipment had to be utilized first in the construction and maintenance of lines for war purposes. Ordinary development and expansion waited.

The Bell Telephone System is making headway in its effort to overtake the demand for service which developed during this period of suspension, but some time will yet be required before the expansion of the business can proceed at normal speed.
