Reserves vs. Current Demands

The calling rate at the telephone switchboard is enormous these days and the telephone companies everywhere are pressed for facilities to meet the ever-increasing demand for, and use of, the service.

In Michigan the customary construction program, that is, customary under pre-war conditions, was abandoned during active hostilities in order that the Bell System might devote all of its energy, all of its ingenuity and thousands of its trained assistants to the winning of the war.

The result is that the demand for facilities has overtaken the supply and today the Michigan State Telephone Company finds itself living from hand to mouth, so to speak, in the matter of facilities.

It is difficult to build up reserve facilities and at the same time meet current demands. The unavoidable delays in construction work have been, discouraging, at times, both for the Telephone Company and the public. But the turn in the road seems now in sight and the management feels confident that, shortly, the Company will be prepared to respond to all demands for service.
