

The real McCoy's celebrate birthday

The McCoy family of Southfield, Livonia, Farmington and points east, west, north and south gathered in Southfield over the weekend for an extravagant family reunion to celebrate their mother's eightieth birthday.

Emily McCoy, who had 80 candles on her cake, had all of her eight sons and daughters from around the country to help her blow out the candles, along with her grandchildren and her great-grandchildren and her friends and . . .

Mary and Bernice came east from California. Joan and Emily came down from Boyne City and Brotherton. Walter came in from Marysville and Culver and Alice came from Farmington Hills and Livonia to congregate at the home of brother Allen of Southfield for an open house and for a weekend so elaborate they had to have an agenda.

The weekend started with 69 tickets to the Sound of Music at Southfield High School, where Allen's daughter plays the lead, second daughter Rachel plays a supporting role and daughter Andrea plays the oboe.

Allen says that "40 or so" family members gathered for family picture taking Saturday, and "about 150 and going up" attended the open house in Southfield.

By the time the clan met at Culver's home for breakfast Sunday morning in Farmington Hills, Emily McCoy felt as if her eightieth birthday had been celebrated in style.

Faces of woman, facets of man mark sisterhood's donor event

"The Many Faces of Woman—The Many Facets of Man" is the name of Sisterhood Adat Shalom's annual donor celebration, set this year for April 9-10.

Claudia Gold heads the event which begins Sunday at 7:30 p.m. when music and a continental men's fashion show by Bonwit Teller will welcome ticket holders in for an evening of wines, cheeses, pastries and flavored coffees.

Patrons will be free to wander in the foyer of the synagogue, transformed for the event, into a boutique arcade.

"The Many Faces of Woman" begins Sunday at 10 a.m. with Catherine Hanf Noren, author of the photo history, "The Camera of My Family," who will talk about her book which traces the author's forebears through six generations.

The boutique arcade will be open until luncheon, which will feature foods with an international flavor.

After lunch Bonwit Teller will present "European Fantasy," a fashion.

SUNDAY'S festivity is an additional evening treat for two, for those who purchase a ticket, from $25 to $100, for Monday's luncheon and lecture.

Tickets for the lunch and lecture alone, on Monday, cost $18. All proceeds from the affair will go towards the sisterhood's continued support of youth programs, camp scholarships, braille classes, visits to nursing homes, adult education, and helping the synagogue wherever necessary.

The membership now tops the 500 mark of the group affiliated with Women's League for Conservative Judaism.

President of the sisterhood is Sonia Knopfer.

Mrs. Gold's committee includes Susan Bindes, Harriet Dunskey, and Anne Helfman, all of Birmingham; Geri Botwin, Rose Liss and Joan Rose-nblom, of Southfield; Shirley Locke of Huntington Woods; Sandy Lorence of West Bloomfield; Celia Schwartz of Franklin. Ruth Newman, Charlotte Nusbaum, Elaine Rosenblatt and Sharon Sukenic are all of Farmington Hills.

Tickets and all inquiries will be taken by calling Ariene Klein, at the synagogue office, 851-5100.
