

Workshop in the woods concert is set

Chamber music lovers have a treat in store for them on Friday at 8:30 p.m. when the Workshop in the Woods presents its midseason concert.

The concert will be performed in the Italian gothic chapel of Duns Scotus College in Southfield. The college is at Nine Mile and Evergreen. Admission is $1 per person.

Taking part in the concert will be music students from every area of greater Detroit and the Detroit Symphony's Ray Benner, artistic director of the workshop. This will be the first of two summer concerts planned by the all-scholarship summer school.

Works by Bach, Handel and others will be presented in the concert. The six-week workshop is sponsored and paid for by the Southfield Arts Council and the Southfield Parks and Recreation Department.

Benner, who founded the workshop, said the Duns Scotus atmosphere is particularly conducive to music making and the talented young people become like a family each summer as they explore the world of music and their own parts in it.

Benner is also the founder of the Cranbrook Festival, the Fairlane Music Guild, Bach at Duns Scotus and

Workshop in the Woods. Some Southfield students taking part in this summer's workshop include

Edith Nagy and Deborah Groatley, both violinists. For further information call 548-7560.
