Start at the top for this fall's silhouette

An easy way to help pull your wardrobe into that all-together look this season is to be mindful of the new silhouette of fashion for fall.

It starts from the top with a small head, follows to an extended shoulder, has a defined waist, and is completed with a slim line coming from the pegged skirt or pant.

Basic investment pieces are slit skirts and dress; some that get their slits with the wraparound. Coats and blouses to invest in will have small collars and an exaggerated shoulder extended with pleating and tucks, padding or epaulettes.

The velvet blazer goes everywhere day or night, worn with corduroy or wool.

Vests come in all shapes and sizes. The wise will look to the reversibles.

SHOP FOR THE new high-heeled ghillie (or bootie shoe), or the new short stacked-heel boot.

Then pull them all together with the season's newest accessories. Look for the fling furs, or a touch of fur anywhere. And gather up a batch of brooches of any size to make a cluster of pins for your lapel.

The head takes on its tiny look by replacing the frizz with a smooth coil. Hair that is braided or coiled or swept up will do nicely, to be topped with visored caps, hats taken from the military, the Cossack, or the Nehru, or the French sailor's beret.

Knotted scarves are too slouchy for the sophisticated classic that runs to Harris tweeds and men's wear this fall, so if you can only purchase one new scarf this season, we suggest a 54-

THE HIPS are rounded:

- In pants with softly gathered or pleated hiplines.
- In skirts and jackets taking a curved or cutaway ending with a cocoon-like shape.

inch oblong. Use it as a bandeau across one shoulder. Use it as a sash around your tunics. Knot it at the back of your neck for a fashion look coming and going.

Or, replace your knotted scarf with a man's tie, a string tie, or a fur fling.

Belts are a must, some are doubled and tripled, some come with small dubs of fur tails. They are available in every width and texture from narrow and rolled to hard leathers.

The new jacketing takes on the peplum look, usually achieved on a short jacket with belting. Don't overlook the new Wild West or the big blouson number on your shopping trip.

THE CONTEMPORARY look comes with dress over pants, whether it is sweater-like yarns and sticks to make up the knit dress or a bathrobe wrap or the classic shirt dress.

The fashion minded woman is going to have so much more leg showing this season that hosiery will be part of her classic investment. We have an easy rule to follow when surveying the rows and rows of new coloring and textures.

The flatter the heel of the shoe, the heavier the texture or the cabling on the stocking, or double sock. Go from there up through the scale to the finest of lacy looking designs to wear with open sandals and the slits in your short or long evening skirts.

For disco dancing, we suggest a slip of a dress, flashed with a rhinestone belt.

Wear it all with eyes made up to be lazy, sultry, defined. Try some of the new charcoal or khaki colors. The skin should be pale, but, please, no hard-ness.

Carry a leather bag. Tuck leather gloves into the belt.

It all adds up to the look of quality and the image of success.

Be on the lookout for the peplum look, usually achieved on a short jacket via belting. The Spenser jacket is small, easy, more fitted. The Big Blouson is emphatic, has extended shoulders. Military details include epaulettes and brass buttons. The Wild West is fringed.
