Clues absent in Hollyer case

Disappearance mystifies cops rarely went out at night.

Mrs. Majorie Frances Hollyer, 68, of 2003 Rayine Square, was last seen by her daughter Julie Walton, 44. Mrs. Hollyer left her daughter's Charlotte home to return to her own suburban sportment.

opertment.

Police in Farmington Hills and Carafotte admit they're styrnied by the disappearance of Miss. Hollyer, who lived alone. As those departments were joined by the Michigan State Police in continuing the search, detectives harbor little hope the woman will be fund alive.

route in continuing the search, detectives harbot little hope the woman will be found alive. In Charlotte, Sgt. Jumes Maybew spert the week since Mrs. Hollyer was trying to track down her 1978 metallic green Chevrolet. Nova with license number MYK 82.

"I've checked every department between Charlotte and Farmington Hills for a report on that car. That car has just simply disappeared," Maybew sold.

A helicopter search of the area around rural Charlotte on Monday attemnon failed to produce any new clues about the woman's whereabouts.
"IT DON'T LOOK GOOD," said Farmington Hills Det. John Hedricks.

When Farmington Hills police entered her apartment to investigate, they found the rooms as Mrs. Hollyer left them, according to Hedricks. A television guide lay on a table opened to Oct. 10.

"It was in very good order. There was no indication of foul play," he said. "She never returned to her apartment."
According to police, Mrs. Hollyer was one of the least likely persons to disappear.

was one of the least likely persons to disappear.

She was last seen at 4:15 p.m. by her daughter as she pulled out of the Walton's driveway to return to Farmington Hills. She told neighbors she would be back by 6 p.m.

would be back by $ p.m.
The Walton home is one block from the expressway that Mrs. Hollyer usually took when she visited her daughter.
"She was familiar with the route.
She had a good car. She had a tankful of gas. She had $150 in her pocket and had just eaten at her daughter's," said Mearhour

had just eaten as not only maybew.
"There was no reason for her to stop. She didn't pick up hithchikers and she didn't own a resort or cabin. She didn't have friends who owned a satin."

Mrs. Hollyer is five foot four inches tall, weighs 125 pounds, has green eyes and short grey hair.

MAJORIE HOLLYER

WHEN LAST SEEN, she was wearing glasses and a light blue short car coat.

By all accounts, she was a creature of cautious habits.
She enjoyed staying home. A few weeks ago she turned down a trip to Traverse City because it would mean staying overnight at a hotel.
"She doesn't like to sleep on any-body's bed but her own," said Maybew. "She didn't like staying away from home."
"She never would go on an overnight

never would go on an overnight

Hollyer.

Since Mrs. Hollyer didn't like driving after dark, she usually planned her trips so she would return in daylight, according to Mrs. Breitag.

Her trip to see her daughter on Oct. Il was supposed to be the last one of the seanon.

the season.
"She wanted to make one more trip
before the snow came," said Mrs.

Breitag.
That trip, too, was scheduled so Mrs.
Hollyer would return during daylight

Hollyer wound return.
The only time she broke her long standing practice of refusing to travel after dark was this spring when she and four other women from Muirwood Apartments traveled to see Liberace in concert at Masonic Temple.

ALTHOUGH Mrs. Hollyer is described as quiet, she has many friends in the apartment complex. Usually she spent her evenings reading or crocheting, according to Mrs. Breilag.

"She was a creature of habit," Mrs. Breilag said of her neighbor of two years.

Breitag said of ner mergmon, years, Mrs. Hollyer's daughter and a niece who lives in Farmington Hills are her only known relatives. She was retired from General Motors about four years ago. Two years ago she moved from Detroit to Farmington Hills.

"I'm. just keeping my, fingers crossed that they find her," said Mrs. Breitag.

Cheering for victory

North Farmington cheerleader April Arabian aided in North Farmington's 35-0 victory over Farmington Harrison last Saturday. To read details of the Raider victory, turn to the sports section. (Staff photo by Harry Mauthe)

Obituaries

ROBERT T. DOBSON

Mr. Dobson, 49, of Farmington Hills ded Oct. 24 at William Beaumont Hos-

He was an engineer with the Ford Motor Co.

Surviving are his wife, Frances M.; daughter, Mrs. Vickie Cox, of West Boomfield; sons, Ted. Jack, Dave; parents, Theodore and Hilda Dokson; turee brothers and two grandchitdren. Sarvioes were conducted at 10:30 am, Oct. 26 in Thayer-Rock Funeral Home, Farmington, Fr. Wolber of St. Genevieve Catholic Church, Livonta officialed. Cremation was at Ever-

DAVID J. FARRAGHER

Mr. Farragher, 72, of Farmington, ded Oct. 24 in Providence Hospital. Born on Jan. 22, 1906, he lived in Youngstown, Ohio. He moved to Farmington three years ago. He was a retired salesmen with Electro-Diamond Tool.

Olivette, Mo.; son, Edward J., of West Bloomfield; sister, Mrs. Ross Sum-mers, of Bradenton, Flz.; brother John P., of Canton, Ohio and six grandchildren.

Services were conducted at 10 a.m., Oct. 27 in Our Lady of Sorrows Catho-lic Church, Farmington. Burial was at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Farmington Observer

Published every Monday and Thursday by the Observer & Eccentijic News-papers, 3625 icholocitat Rd. Livonia, Michigan 48150. Second-class Postage paid al Livonia, Michigan 48151. Address all mail (subscriptions, change of ad-dress. Form 3579) to P.O. Box 2428, Livonia, Michigan 48151. Telephone 261-3900.

