Old Car Festival Slated At Village

The sparkling machines will line up three abreast, a starter will signal, and the sleek machines will spring away from the starting line toward -- a balloon. The object is to burst the balloon by running over it. Two or three more balloons await before the car crosses the finish line about 100 yards from where the race started. But it's not as easy as it may sound because the cars' tires are so thin. That's due to the fact that all of the cars in the balloon race and other contests were built before 1925.

The competition is part of the excitement that takes place Sept. 7-8 at the Old Car Festival at Greenfield Village. While some vehicles are involved in races, others will try to put their best wheel forward as they vie for ribbons based on the quality of their restoration. At the same time still other ancient autos will roll past spectators as an announcer describes their finer features.

Some will move silently under their own steam or electric power. The Internal combustion models will chug about coughing back at those who are moved to shout, "Get a horse!" The relatively new 1917-1925 vehicles will be the highlight of the first day's activity. All
