Cassini has scents galore

By RUSTLE SHAND

Oleg Cassini thinks that perfumes allow one to capture sensual moments in one's life.

Holiday geniality between the sexes will be further enhanced by the appearance of fragrances designed by Oleg Cassini specifically for intimate relationships.

For more than a year Cassini has been deeply involved with Jovan in the development of the new fragrance lines.

He calls the line "the most exciting" of his creations because, "it is possible to capture many of the most memorable and sensual moments of one's life. Now, we shall share them with the women of America and with the men who appreciate them most."

For Cassini, creating his own signature fragrances is the culmination of the complete cycle of fashion which he initiated as early as the 1950s, and continued after he became official couturier to first lady Jacqueline Kennedy.

"TODAY, we take it for granted that a designer will create fashion from head to toe," Cassini said during a recent visit to the J. L. Hudson stores. "And now, we add the other essential element -- a fragrance that completes and perfects the final illusion."

Cassini has not limited his attention to women. Though he has designed for princesses, first ladies and movie stars, and even a place in women's hearts for his A-line shape, his little white collar dress, the military look, the sheath and knits, he has also designed for men.

The western look the blazer, the turtleneck for evening are Cassini innovations. Perhaps his most generous breakthrough for men is the other-than-white shirt.

"My basic design philosophy," Cassini said, "is to parallel a woman's total look with that of the man she's with. Accordingly, the Cassini fragrances for men and women will be compatible, although each is capable of standing alone. Both are unusually sensual, he said.

Oleg Cassini for women, as interpreted by Jovan, is beautiful and delicate, designed to linger forever as a great love affair should. Cassini for men is described as dangerously masculine, with a warm, sophisticated framework of gentlemanly elegance.

The fragrance lines for women include a perfume, a cologne concentrate and natural spray plus a fragranced dusting powder. The men's scents come in splash-and-spray after-shave colognes and soap on a rope.

The moderately priced items are available at the J. L. Hudson stores.

Waldorf group plans arts festival

The Holiday Festival of Arts, sponsored by the Oakland Waldorf Association, will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8, and from 1-5 p.m. Dec. 9 in Waldorf Kinder House, a non-profit kindergarten and nursery, 15945 14 Mile, Beverly Hills.

This annual exhibition of original works of art and toys was designed to focus attention upon the spirit and universality of childhood as well as combining a benefit with shopping for unusual holiday gifts.

Among the featured artists exhibiting their work for sale are: Barbara Holmberg, creative clay sculptures; Maurice Chandler, functional ceramic ware and Shari Kane, child's lap harp and folk string instruments. Also involved are Karen Schimek, handpainted theorems (Victorian art form of oils on velvet); Paul Hoffmeyer, woodworks; the Toy Tree of Grand Rapids; Ann Bickel, textiles; Eugene Mulligan, dollhouse furniture; Mary Sivak, jumbo clowns and bears.

In addition, the Oakland Waldorf Association is also featuring a newly designed line of handmade soft toys, imported animal sculptures, handpainted picture puzzles, beeswax items, and books.

For more information, call the Waldorf Kinder House, 642-0102.

Therapy to be explored

Psychotherapy will be investigated during three workshops aimed at clergy, lawyers and doctors in November and December at the Ramada Inn, 28225 Telegraph, Southfield.

The workshops will be conducted by Nathan Claunch, psychologist and marriage counselor, and Berenice Glass, social worker.

The aim of the sessions will be to present recent advances in communication and psychotherapy to physicians, attorneys, members of the clergy and other professionals.

The workshop with an emphasis for the clergy will take place from 10:30 a.m. to 1:15 p.m. Friday, Nov. 30. It will be followed by one with an emphasis for attorneys at the same hours Saturday, Dec. 8. A third one, with an emphasis for doctors, will be from 2-4:45 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 8.

Cost of each workshop is $10, and each is open to spouses free of charge.

Claunch, who received his Ph.D. in psychology from Princeton University, did post doctoral clinical training at Merrill-Palmer Institute of Human Development and Family Life. His Farmington Hills practice includes individual, group and marital psychotherapy.

Mrs. Glass, who has practiced individual, child and family therapy in Farmington Hills and Ann Arbor for 10 years, received her master's degree in social work at the University of Michigan. She holds an advanced clinical membership in the International Transactional Analysis Association. For more information, contact Claunch or Mrs. Glass at 851-1737.

Editor to address economic club

Kate Rand Lloyd, editor-in-chief of Working Woman Magazine, will talk on "Women's New Power and How They Can Use It" at a luncheon of the Women's Economic Club at 11:30 a.m., Tuesday, Dec. 4.

The event will take place in Columbus Ballroom of the Detroit Plaza Hotel.

Mrs. Rand, who is married and the mother of three, is a lecturer at Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism.

To obtain tickets, contact Agnes Scott at 873-7280.
