Imagination flourishes

into the shape desired, or cut the cardboard to fit.

Mix up a soupy bowl of white flour and water, and tear newspapers into strips 1-1/4 inches thick. One at a time, dip the strips into the flour-water mixture and wrap around the wire skeleton. Let them dry thoroughly (about a week) and finish with painting and enamel poster colors, or adhere pieces of felt, glitter, lace or whatever is on hand.

A manger scene, Santa Claus or Christmas dolls may be created with cardboard rolls and some yarn and beads. Wrap the plain roll in construction paper, adding wings, arms or a songbook with different colored paper. Attach a styrofoam ball head with glue, and allow to dry about an hour. Cut strips of yard for hair, and fill in the facial expression using tiny beads or bangles.

STYROFOAM TREES can be designed in any shape and color, using an assortment of beads, bric-a-brac and large-head mixed and matched to preference. The finished trees may be hung on walls, mantles or placed in windows where the beads reflect nicely in the glow of Christmas lights.

Other wall hangings can be designed by using construction paper, felt and pieces of material. Simply draw a design on the paper, cut the pieces of felt and material to fit and glue in place.

Using a full felt square as background, and adding pipe cleaners, bric-a-brac and Q-tips, a winter scene can be created all in white. Border the square with Q-tips, which adhere easily with glue, and build a tree of cotton swabs in the center. A snowy ground can be created with cotton, pipe cleaners or bric-a-brac.
