

Jaycees bring know-how to community center's 'Millionaire's Party'

The Farmington Community Center will be turned into a little Las Vegas on the evening of Saturday, Feb. 9 with a little help from its friends.

The evening at the gambling tables have always proved a successful money-maker for the Farmington Area Jaycees, so it was a natural way to go for John Sprys who is heading up the center's next benefit.

Sprys is a school principal in Dearborn Heights who was actively involved in the local Jaycee chapter for about 10 years. He served as its president in 1972-73 and chaired a few Millionaire's Parties along the way. Before leaving the group in 1979 he was given the title "Jaycee Senator," the organization's highest award.

The job at hand now, he says, "is rounding up other old Jaycees to help the community center. It isn't hard because the Jaycees have always been supporters of the center and by using their experience and contacts we can make it a successful benefit," he said.

THE FARMINGTON Community Center's benefit is but one in a string of benefits staged, many times by outside groups, to help meet general operating expenses.

"It's a community center so it is a community affair," said Sprys who has served on the center's board of directors for the past couple years.

"The center's Millionaire's Party could be a novel way to treat your friends and relatives to an evening out.

JOHN SPRYS

We have gathered some very nice prizes for players to purchase with their winning chips," he said.

Play runs from 7:30-11:30 p.m. Tickets, at $5 each, include gambling chips and refreshments. Advance tickets can be purchased in the center, on Farmington Road, north or Ten Mile, or will be held by calling the center, 477-8404.

Tickets at the door will sell for $6.

Students named to honors list

Residents from Farmington and Farmington Hills were among students at Central Michigan University named to the honors list for the fall semester. Those from Farmington are: Susan Campbell, 22701 Cass; Angela Heath, 23266 Valleyview; and David Stader, 23151 Farmington Road. Stader received all A's.

From Farmington Hills are: Elizabeth Chambers, 30165 Valley Side; Jeanette Dabrow, 21550 Wonderst; Perry Rogers, 24757 West Woodside; and Jeffrey Sovel, 31547 Thirteen Mile.

Calligraphers meet Monday

Michigan Association of Calligraphers meet at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 21, in Farmington Hills Community Library on 12 Mile Road to hear a program on the quality of paper.

"Since good quality paper is essential to turning out quality workmanship for calligraphers," said spokesman Helen Lawton, "we have invited Thomas Kinchloe to be our guest speaker." Kinchloe is a representative of Crane Paper Company.

Following Kinchloe's speech, Suzanne Ebel, president of the group, will show slides from her 1978 trip to England.

Guests are invited to the meeting.
