

Garett Gallery's art show brings the winners together

"The Winners Show," displaying paintings, sculpture and pottery by 10 Michigan artists who have gained national and international recognition, continues in Garret Gallery and Studios, 33310 Grand River, Farmington.

It is the first major show for the Garrett, which brings together the state's biggest award winners for the exhibit during May.

LOUIS G. REDSTONE, whose goal is to bring good art into architecture, comes to the show, after winning the 1978 Gold Medal of the Michigan Society of Architects, the highest honor the society bestows.

He is the author of four books on art and architecture. He has been honored with the Patron Award from Michigan Foundation for the Arts and services on the Special Commission on Art in State Buildings, an appointment by Governor William Milliken.

JOHN GLICK, is the recipient of six grants, including two National Endowments for the Arts grants for his pottery. He has won the Michigan Foundation for the Arts Governors Award and was named Farmington Artist in Residence.

He was commissioned by Joan Mondale for dinnerware for the vice president of the U.S. and is featured in a film, "John Glick, an Artist and His Work," commissioned by Michigan Foundation for the Arts.

MARY JANE BIGLER, recently retired art professor at Wayne State University, is now teaching at Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association.

Twenty select artists will study under her on a tour to Postino, Italy, this summer.
