Little Johnny's Fears

WHERE we use to live, we had
A fireplace big an' wide,
An' all that Sanny had to do
Was hold his breath an' slide,
An' agreee himself until he st
The hole, an' then est drop—
An' he knowed where the stokin' was.
'Cause that was where he'd stop.

Where we use to live, it was
No trick for him to climb
Up to the chimney on the roof
An' stid us, Christmas eve,
But now I'm worryin' if I fear,
He won't know where he's at,
Or mebbe can't get in at all.
'We're livin' in a flat!

'We're livin' in a flat, an' say,
You must be most believ'
Or else the janitor left go,
An' lock you out at night!
There ain't no chimney in our house,
Where Sanny Claus can slide—
There ain't no fireplace—just a pipe
About two inches wide.

They heat our flat with steam—that's why
I'm afraid he can't get in
With all his toys an' drus an' things.
Unless he's awful dinn'
An' how's he go to wriggle out
When he gets in the flat?
There's such an awful little hole,
'Where where the stoke is!

HOLLY MAY SOON BE EXTINGUISHED

Popular Christmas Decoration Is Growing Less Beautiful Each Year, According to Reports.

Christmas holly, that merriest and most beloved of all growing bushes, is threatened with extinction, according to a warning sounded by lovers of a red Christmas. Once growing profusely in southern New Jersey and Maryland, it has been swept from those states by the ruthless cutters for the city markets, and must now be sought in the swamps of Virginia and North Carolina, where already the supply is growing less beautiful each year. The Gulf states have been similarly shorn to make holiday for the large cities.

Within another generation, botanists say, holly will be as rare as mistletoe, which used to grow in abundance on the Atlantic seaboard, as far north as Raritan bay, but has now practically ceased to exist as a Christmas decoration. When will the American people learn that the beauty of their fields and woodlands is not limitless?

With shifting hearts nature lovers have long since recoiled at the disappearance of the delicate, trailing arbutus, flower of the Florida maidens, from all woods near large cities. The mountains, which once swept the hills of June with pink drifts like naughty clouds, are being swept from the sunset, has now retreated to the remote mountain side. —New York Tribune
