The Gentle Art.
All anglers are gentlemen, regardless of their business calling, appearance, personality or companionship. When a man—fisherman or no fisherman—develops into an angler he must first become gentle in order to be the gentle art. From "The Determined Angler and the Brook Trout" by Charles Bradford.

UNSIGHTLY CORDS

Cords stretched up to the lighting fixture are unsightly and inconvenient; and there is no need to bother with them.

Use "convenience outlets" instead. They will cost you very little (nothing at all when not in use) and they are a wonderful comfort in the home.

Convenience outlets are small sockets placed inconspicuously in wall or floor and supply current to floor lamps or irons, to toasters or percolators; in short to any electrical household appliance.

Come in and let us tell you about them.
