Birmingham Temple Studies Four Men In Winter Series

The Birmingham Temple is currently studying the struggle for power of four individuals.

All the programs are in the Robert Frost Junior High School on Scotia near Nine Mile Road in Oak Park. Starting time is 8:30 p.m.

Rabbi Sherwin Wine is conducting the series.

FIRST PERSON discussed on Jan. 23 was "Huey Long -- the Power of the Common Man." The discussion was based on T. Harry Williams' new biography "Huey Long."

"Lawrence of Arabia -- the Power of the Romantic" is the topic for the Jan. 30 program.

This program is based on the new biography "The Secret Lives of Lawrence of Arabia" by Philip Knightly.

On Feb. 6, the topic shifts to a contemporary political figure in the discussion entitled "Robert Kennedy -- the Power of Youth." This discussion is based on Jack Newfield's book "Robert Kennedy."

Che Guevara is the focal point of the Feb. 13 discussion with Daniel James' biography of the rebel serving as the basis for a discussion of "Che Guevara -- the Power of the Rebel."

DURING DISCUSSIONS, Rabbi Wine will consider two basic questions as applied to these men: What is the secret of power? And how have these men achieved and held power?

Each of the men that serve as focal points for the discussions died violently and each has become a legend.

Four experimental poetic services are scheduled in conjunction with the series by the Temple. Several of the poems have been set to music by Choir Director Dorian Samuels.

Holiness Convention Now At Nazarene

A Mid-Winter Holiness Convention is underway this week in the Westland First Church of the Nazarene located at 3245 Wallace St., Westland.

The convention started last Tuesday night and will continue until Jan. 25. Services will start each evening at 7:30 p.m.

FEATURED speaker is the Rev. R.N. Raycroft, an elder in the Church of the Nazarene, who has served intermittently as pastor and evangelist since his conversion in the early 30s.

A native of Canada, Rev. Raycroft began his ministry in St. Regis Falls, N.Y., as pastor there and he has also pastored in Massachusetts and Indiana. His last pastorate was in Howell where he served from 1963-69 when he entered full time evangelism.

He has traveled as an evangelist to camps, churches and conventions throughout the country, is considered an outstanding Bible expositor and much of his preaching is expository.

PRESENTING special music each night will be Mr. and Mrs. Ed Behr. Behr comes with a rich background as director of music for a number of churches.

"Rev. Raycroft will be bringing timely holiness messages dealing with today's dilemmas," says Rev. R.A. Lashley, pastor of the Westland Nazarene Church.

Rev. Lashley invites anyone to attend the Mid-Winter Holiness Convention at the church which is located two blocks south of Palmer and one block east of Wayne Rd. in Westland.

New DBC Course Deals With Family Life

A new course concerned with the dynamics of family life will be included in the evening school program at Detroit Bible College during the spring semester. It is announced by Dr. Charles H. Shaw, evening school director.

Dr. Bradford, a professional marriage counselor, will conduct the course entitled "The Christian Home." Study is intended to facilitate understanding of various family situations by directing attention to the practical aspects of family relationships. Dr. Shaw added.

Registration for evening school takes place Jan. 29 and classes begin Feb. 3.

In addition to "The Christian Home," two other courses will be re-instituted in the evening school program. They are: "First Theologians" and "Laymen Techniques."

"First Theologians," to be taught by Donald A. Knapp, instructor in Bible and Theology, will include a detailed exposition of various aspects of the New Testament book. Rev. Paul C. Whaley, director of Christian Service at the college, will teach "Laymen Techniques," designed to instruct laymen in the formalities of pastoral church service.

For more information on DBC's evening school program, contact Director of Evening School, Detroit Bible College, 13730 Metro, Detroit or phone UN 4-4800.
