WELL, ANGLES figures it must be summer. As it looks out from the air-conditioned splendor of the Observer office, it notes the Farmingtonies have begun dressing for success in warm weither. Other tell-tale signs include: the Downtown: Farmington Center has turned on its outdoor Mizzak speakers, and the drugstore on 'Farmington Center has turned on its outdoor Mizzak speakers, and the drugstore on 'Farmington Center als types. So, to all of Farmington sait gears up for another summer, IA sends this :dmittedly energy-wasting salute:

YES, FESTIVAL Jovers, there is a Founders Festival. The 16th festival will make its appearance July 28-27 in the sister cities. This year, like many of us, he Festival is beleagured by year, like many of us, he Festival is beleagured by debts and inflation. To reduce the deficit from the last festival, this year's committee is conducting a raffle. For §1 a chance, residents and non-residents alike can buy a try at a Las Vegas weekend (three nights and four days of slot machines.) Or, if the winner prefers, 3500. The second prize is $100 and the third is $85. There will be 15 additional prizes given to another group of lucky winners. The tickets are available at storge around fown. For $20 big shooters can buy 20 tickets. If you can't find the tickets around town call the Farmington Chamber of Commerce, 474-3440. Volunteers who want to sell the tickets should call the same number or Bob Carist at 478-1324. YES, FESTIVAL lovers, there is a

OTHER FESTIVAL NEWS. There's still OTHER FESTIVAL NEWS. There's sit time left to spasors a booth or event, enter a float, car, horse or just about anything else that moves last enough in the Festival parade, slated to marci down Grand River July 26. To obtain registration information, send a self-addressed stamped envelope with your request to the Farmington Chamber of Commerce, PO Box 15, Farmington Chamber of Commerce, PO Box 18, Farmington 48024. Specify the event in which you're interested because that same address can be used to obtain information on the annual Miss Farmington Scholarship Pageant.

Applications are available to young women, 17-28 years old, who wish to enter the pageant. This year the event is scheduled for July 23. Entrants must be residents of one of the sister cities. As usual, the winner will receive her crown during ceremonies at Vladimir's on Grand River near Eight Mile. The scholarship prize for the first-place winner is 1,100°. There will be gifts and cash prizes for the runners-up. Women who enter will participate in six to eight weeks of intensive workshops to brush up on their make-up, hairdressing and walking skills.
