

Praying for clear skies

(Continued from Page 1B)

is not that formidable. "Anytime you don't have money in the bank and there are hard times this happens. Actually, I think $100,000 is great over 16 years. "I'd like to avoid it but that's just part of staging a festival like this."

Hyke said he intends to keep administrative costs as low as possible without affecting service.

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

AND HE REFUSES to skimp on talent, bringing in more big names this season like Rita Coolidge, Chuck Berry, Nancy Wilson and Loretta Lynn, whose autobiography "Coal Miner's Daughter" is a movie hit.

The idea is to "broaden the base of support," said Hyke, who is encouraged by the large number of requests already in for country singer Lynn's show.

"We're trying to bring new audiences into the festival," he explained, adding that past seasons have been more "middle of the road."

"We haven't deserted the patrons who have made the place successful for 16 years, but we're bringing in new artists — and hopefully new audiences. Our feeling is that once we get them here they will return."

Meadow Brook will still be heavy on classical works by symphony orchestras. But Sunday concerts will feature "lighter" works this summer. "It's a chance for people to become familiar with what the orchestra sounds like," explained Hyke, who hosts WDET-FM's radio show "The Maestro."

Children's concerts, always a minor part of the Meadow Brook season, will increase in "scope" this summer. "We view them as an investment in the future. We want to assure the fact that there will be audiences for classical concerts eventually," explained Hyke, who believes the children's fare should be entertaining, high quality and "worthwhile."

"KIDS ARE exposed to enough popular music," he explained. "I think the background youngsters are supplied with in school is lacking. The first thing to go in budget cuts is usually music."

Hyke won't guess whether the slow economy will help or hurt Meadow Brook Music Festival's 10-week season this year. But one addition — the All-American picnic — is intended to make it easier for families to handle festival food prices.

"If people are traveling they'll spend more money close to home. But if they're cutting back, they will cut entertainment dollars," he said.

"We're operating on the idea that we will offer the best entertainment we can and hope people spend their entertainment dollars on us."

community calendar

ONE WOMAN SHOW

Thursday, June 26: Artist Jean Rothenberg shows her work in acrylics, oils and collage in the one-woman show that runs through June 30 in Farmington Community Library on Liberty Street.

SILK FLOWERS

Thursday, June 26: The art of creating silk flowers taught in two-session workshop with Mary Foran runs 7:30-9:30 p.m. in Farmington Community Center. Workshop for advanced students runs the same time beginning Thursday, July 10. Registration is necessary by calling the center, 477-8404.

CIRCUS WAGON

Friday and Saturday, June 27-28: "Bobby the Magic Clown and His Circus Wagon," shows presented at 1:30, 4:30 and 7 p.m. Friday and at 11:30 a.m., 1:30 and 3 p.m. Saturday in Livonia Mall, Seven Mile and Middlebelt. No charge. Youngsters are invited to come dressed in clown outfits to vie for prizes.

GARAGE SALE

Friday through Sunday, June 27-29: Garage sale, sponsored by Order of the Eastern Star 239 begins at 6 a.m. each morning at 33242 Meadowlark, Farmington. Address is east of Farmington Road, north of Eight Mile Road.

CEDAR POINT

Saturday, June 28: Bus will leave the Farmington Area YMCA at 6 a.m. for a trip to Cedar Point and return about midnight. Open to senior high school students only. Reservations taken by calling the Y, 553-4020.

MEN'S QUARTET

Sunday, June 29: The Men's Quartet from Pillsbury Baptist Bible College in Minnesota appears in concert during the 9:45 and 11 a.m. services in First Baptist Church of Farmington, 33400 Shawassee Road.

TEENS ACTIVITIES CENTER

Monday, June 30: Farmington Area Summer Activities Center opens this date, geared for 13-to-17-year-olds, in Shawassee Recreation Center, on Shawassee Road between Nine Mile and Orchard Lake Road. The drop-in center is open 4-8 p.m. weekdays, and 7-10 p.m. Tuesdays are scheduled as field-trip days. All rules and regulations will be posted in the center along with variety of activities offered.

GOLF OUTING

Monday, June 30: Day of golfing begins at 7 a.m. at Plum Hollow Golf Club, Nine Mile and Lakser, to benefit Providence Hospital. Tickets and information available by calling Providence Hospital Foundation offices, 424-3421.

AFRICAN SAFARI

Tuesday and Thursday, July 1 and 3: African Safari, program for all elementary school-aged children at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Farmington Hills Community Library on 12 Mile Road and at 2 p.m. Thursday in Farmington Community Library on Liberty. No charge. Pre-registration is not necessary.

FREE MOVIE

Tuesday, July 1: Free movies sponsored by Livonia Mall Merchants Association continues at 10 a.m. Tuesday in the mall Cinema, Seven Mile and Middlebelt, through the summer.

DOG OBEDIENCE TRAINING

Thursday, July 3: Dog obedience training begins at 7 p.m. in American Legion Post 31775 Grand River and continues for 13 Thursdays sponsored by Metropolitan Dog Obedience Training School. Dogs must be at least four months of age and have proof of distemper vaccination to qualify. Registration and inquiries taken by calling Valerie Sprader, 851-5088.

SINGLES ON WHEELS

Thursday, July 3: Singles on Wheels, roller skating party for singles only at 9:30 p.m. in Bonaventure, 24505 Halstead Road (near 10 Mile Road and Grand River). Admission of $3.50 asked at the door.

BABYSITTING INSTRUCTION

Monday, July 7: Babysitting instructions for all 11-to-15-year-olds runs 2-4 p.m. for four Mondays in Farmington Hills Community Library. Those who complete instructions will receive certification from American National Red Cross. Registrations are necessary by calling Lauren Bowman, 553-0300. No charge.

BLACK WORK

Tuesday, July 8: One-session workshop teaches the art of black work, a needlecraft popular in Elizabethan England, 1-3 p.m. in Farmington Community Center with instructors Kathy Brodie and Pat Donaldson. This is the first time the craft will be taught in this area. Reservations are necessary by calling the center, 477-8404.

ORIENTAL FLOWER ARRANGING

Thursday, July 10: The art of arranging flowers in the Oriental manner taught in one-session two-hour workshop with Mary Bowman. Participants may register for class at 9:30 a.m., 1 or 7:30 p.m. by calling the Farmington Community Center, 477-8404. Flowers are available for purchase in class or participants may bring their own.

IMMUNIZATION CLINIC

Thursday, July 10: Free immunization clinic offers shots and boosters for all persons under 18 years of age in clinic sponsored by Oakland County Health Division from 9 a.m. to noon in Shawassee Recreation Center, 30415 Shawassee. Appointments are not necessary.

FARMINGTON BEAUTIFICATION COMMITTEE

Thursday, July 10: Farmington Beautification Committee regular monthly meeting at 8 p.m. in Farmington City Hall on Liberty Street. Open to all interested persons.

Firm appoints vice president

James P. Young has been elected vice president-regional manager for Michigan by Mortgage Guaranty Insurance Corp.

Young brings to his new position several years' experience in sales and sales management.

He joined MCIC in 1974 after being with International Harvester as a financial analyst. He held positions with MGIC in financial analysis, sales planning and product development before joining the Michigan sales force in 1978.

Graduating with highest honors from the University of Hawaii in 1971, Young earned his master's degree from the University of Wisconsin in 1974.

He lives in Farmington Hills with his wife, Jill, and their children.

WSU awards scholarships

The office of admissions at Wayne State University has awarded five Farmington area high school seniors four-year full tuition scholarships.

Recipients are John Johnston, a Harrison High School graduate; Charlita Mangrum of North Farmington High; and three graduating seniors from Our Lady of Mercy — Marisa Abbo, Lisa Brancato and Mary Katkie.

This scholarship was awarded to over 400 students whose high school grade point average was above 2.6 and who had superior SAT-ACT scores.

The merit scholarship is in its ninth year and more than 1,600 students presently at WSU receive this award.

Boston College confers degrees

Michael H. Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cass Morrow of Farmington Hills was awarded a bachelor of science degree at the 104th commencement of Boston College.

A 1976 graduate of North Farmington High School, Morrow concentrated in both finance and marketing at Boston College, graduating magna cum laude.

He was selected to Who's Who Among Students in American Colleges and Universities.

Beautiful Wedding Candids And Bridal Portraiture

Let Us Tell You About Our Photography and Services

bill williams
STUDIO, INCORPORATED

Royal Oak 548-7660
1107 Crooks Rd.

Walled Lake 669-2220
2159 Pontiac Tr.

Jewelry Appraisals

By Appointment ... done while you wait. Photos included.

Fredrick Jewelers
869 West Long Lake Road at Telegraph
616-0973

DUTY & TAXES REFUNDED

FURS by Arpin

484 Pelissier St. (opp. YWCA)
(2 minutes from the tunnel)
U.S. Dollars valued at current Exchange
WINDSOR 1-519-253-5612

echo park school

Relocating in Franklin Village School Mother-Toddler Program Kindergarten - Pre-school Pre-first and First Grade 646-5590

ARE YOU THINKING OF SELLING YOUR JEWELRY?

34 years experience in the purchase of diamonds, fine jewelry and estates

IMMEDIATE CASH!

ROBERT GALE, INC.
Fine Jewelry

728 S. Adams, at 14 1/2 Mile Birmingham 644-8860
AMPLE, FREE PARKING

Before you choose a vinyl floor, make sure you've seen the best — Congoleum.

#2590 & 2592 - Union Square
$1350
Reg. $15.95

#2548 & 2580 - Chesterfield
$1395
Reg. $15.95

#2549 - Hearthside
$1095
Reg. $15.95

Don't miss our collection of Fashionflor® inlaid vinyl floors from Congoleum. Classic colors, gorgeous textures... plus inlaid durability.

SALE ENDS JULY 8, 1980

CARPET • VINYL • HARDWOOD

Our Own Expert Installers Are Available

CUSTOM FLOORS

315 HAMILTON ROW • BIRM • 647-6150

HOURS:
Mon-Tues 9-5:30
Wed-Fri 9-5:30
Thurs 9-8:30

Shelley Alpern Napora

Ms. Napora went to both the University of Maryland and the Maryland Institute of Art where she earned a Bachelor of Arts degree. After gaining experience at other firms, she joined the Gorman's interior design staff and since has proved to be one of our most innovative designers. Discuss your needs with her at Gorman's.

GORMAN'S

Telegraph at 12 Mile, Southfield • Phone: 353-9880
Open Daily 10 to 6; Monday, Thursday & Friday 'til 9; Closed Sunday.

COMING SOON TO FAIRLANE IN DEARBORN