

No one will yell "fore" when this couple step out for an evening. Her gold lame bodice, one shoulder dress with black lame slender skirt is embellished with soft bows at the waist and shoulder. J.S. Scherrer at Hattie, Inc. His two-piece tuxedo by Bill Blass for After Six is made of light weight wool and dacon, $265 at Steve Petix.

At night

Ruffles will flourish

Grand happenings arrive for fall '80. There's a lot of black magic in the air with velvet floating in the night accompanied by silken ruffles and unexpected flourishes.

Gold gleams in new lames. Softened silks will team with sparkling threads to make evenings in '80 the most glamorous we've seen in recent years.

There's also an ease in the silhouette, which will soften yet delineate the figure. Unexpected, very large bows often offset at the shoulder and waistline, lending the flattering asymmetrical line to otherwise simple gowns.

Shorter gowns are the big topic this year, but long gowns are still lovely and more than worthy of an investment.
