

Clinic performs 15 bypass operations daily

and Rev. Frayer say they know people with heart disease who put off necessary surgery. "WITH THE success rate they have down there (at Cleveland Clinic) anybody who needs help shouldn't hesitate to go," Cairns said. "You feel so much better afterwards. Those who go in in bad shape will notice the difference immediately."

Rev. Frayer says many persons think heart disease as an embarrassment or something they've brought upon themselves. That's not always the case. And it isn't just something that affects older persons.

"In a year I had buried 10 men under 40 with heart attacks," said the minister.

"I find we have many ways of rationalizing away the warning signs," Rev. Frayer said. "A lot of people will say it's just an upset stomach after exertion. Another thing, I hear, is quite commonly people will die on the curb-side after sitting down on the construction site and blaming their trouble on a salamander. That indignation may be a clear-cut sign something's wrong."

Factors which may lead to heart disease include stress, obesity, heredity, heavy smoking, lack of exercise, diabetes, tension and high level of cholesterol intake.

Artery blockage may cause angina, a sensation of tightening around the heart muscles. Rev. Frayer described the sensation, at its worst, as feeling "like a heavy weight of a 10-ton truck's rear wheels parked on your chest."

Rev. Frayer said before the first bypass operation he kept waiting for a sharp, piercing pain that never materialized.

"For me it was like a great pain, like steel bands around the chest, pulling in on the whole thing."

Cairns said he knew he'd better go back for another cardiac catheterization test when he tried to use a Roto-Till on his garden and had to stop due to fatigue.

Man charged in Livonia murder

Mrs. Waluzak and the stabbing of one of the daughter's boyfriends. Police believe that Gregg's rampage included raping, or attempting to rape, and killing Mrs. Waluzak; then attempting to rape daughter Sandra Ann, 20, then struggling with daughter Christina, 19, and then stabbing Craig Schmidt, 22, Christina's boyfriend, apparently after recognizing Schmidt as someone who knew him.

Gregg stood mute Tuesday to one count of first degree murder, two counts of assault with intent to commit murder and one count of first degree criminal sexual conduct. Pleas of not guilty were entered for him by District Judge James Mies.

Schmidt, a former classmate of Gregg at Farmington High School, was in guarded condition at Botsford Hospital's intensive care unit after being stabbed in the stomach.

According to reports taken from the witnesses, police said, Gregg entered Sandra's bedroom after attacking her mother.

He tried to rape Sandra but the girl's cries awakened Christina, asleep in an adjoining bedroom.

Christina struggled with Gregg and pulled him away from her sister. Gregg threw Christina against a wall and Sandra fled the room and locked herself in her mother's bedroom. Gregg pursued her.

CHRISTINA returned to her own bedroom and Gregg, carrying a large knife, entered it shortly afterward, apparently seeking Sandra, according to the reports.

Schmidt, woke up and was stabbed. Gregg then kicked in the mother's bedroom door and again attacked Sandra before she was able to flee the house and go to a neighbor, according to the witnesses' accounts. The neighbor called police.
