

Suzanne Bloch To Perform In Area

Suzanne Bloch, an authority on Elizabethan music, will appear in two concerts in the area next week.

She will be the guest artist during the Plymouth Symphony concert Sunday, March 1, and will appear in the Scholcraft College Humanities Series Monday, March 2.

The Sunday concert begins at 4 p.m. in the Plymouth High School at Church and Main Streets in Plymouth. The Scholcraft concert is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Liberal Arts building theater on the campus on Haggerty, north of Six Mile, in Livonia.

BOTH CONCERTS are open to the public free of charge. A special nursery service for children between the ages of two and six is offered during the Plymouth concert.

Miss Bloch performs on the lute, virginals and recorders. The daughter of the late Ernst Bloch, the great modern composer, Miss Bloch acquired an understanding of ancient music as a child but it was not until she was a young music student in Germany that she began playing the instruments associated with that music. Her first concert as a soloist was in 1938 at Judson Hall in New York and immediately she began a tour of colleges to play ancient music.

"THIS TYPE of music had for many years been considered pathetic, and really for old maids," Miss Bloch once said. "I have tried to show that it is alive and had something to say to us today. Elizabethan music is actually similar to popular music in that it takes a hit tune and varies it. It is beautiful music that relates to the present, yet tells so much of the past."

Miss Bloch first heard the lute while studying composition in Germany and she heard Margo, the step-daughter of Albert Einstein sing Yiddish and German songs to the accompaniment of a German lute.

She bought a lute for the German equivalent of $7.50 and went to work. In England, Miss Bloch met Arnold Dolmetsch who questioned her "cigar box" and suggested that she buy a real lute—an instrument that must have from 11 to 19 strings. Eventually she was able to buy a 1600 lute.

MISS BLOCH has toured extensively in the United States, Canada and Europe, and has played with major symphony orchestras including the New York Philharmonic under Leonard Bernstein and with the Philadelphia Orchestra under the baton of Eugene Ormandy.

Currently she is a faculty member of the Juilliard School of Music and conducts a seminar on Renaissance music for graduate students.

Miss Bloch's recital appearance at Scholcraft is part of a tour arranged by the Association of American Colleges' Art Program.

SUZANNE BLOCH, an authority on Elizabethan music, will appear in two concerts in the area next week.
