

At St. Fabian

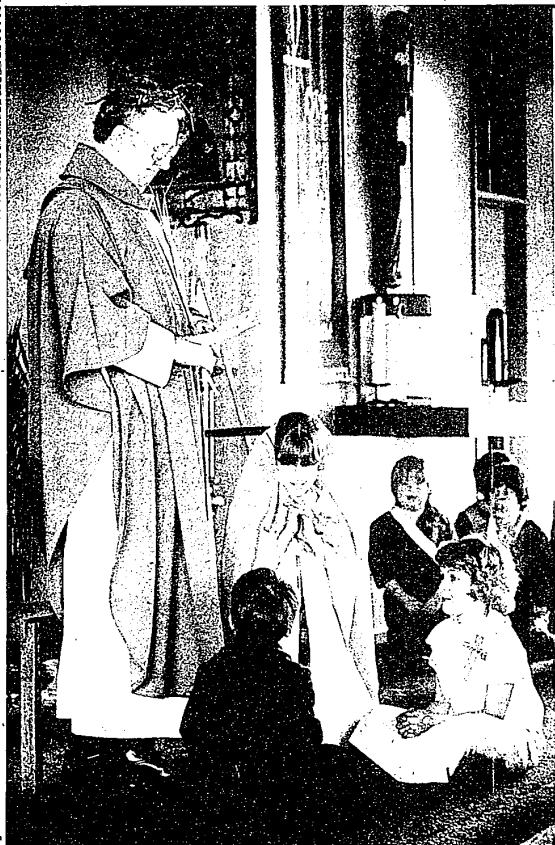

Students add special touch to Passion Play

Rene Colina, Eesan Chu and Stephen Valente sing a hymn during Mass.

Joseph Fee whispers a prayer.

Participating in the Passion Play were the Rev. Seamus Ryan, Kim Alexander, Jennifer Rachner and Scott Simpson.

They were all there. Mary, Joseph, Jesus and the crowds welcoming him to Jerusalem waving palms.

The players were third graders in Mary Johnsee's class at St. Fabian's School in Farmington Hills.

"Every week a different class prepares the Mass theme," explained Sister Loretelle, school principal.

The third grade decided to present the Passion Play last Thursday to coincide with Palm Sunday.

The play went off without a hitch. The Rev. Seamus Ryan, in the title role, even stooped down low enough for one of the youngsters to place a crown of thorns on his head.

Today is the first day of Easter vacation at St. Fabian's.

Staff photos by Randy Borst.

casual status at hudson's

FROM THE LEADER OF UPPER-CLASSICS...CHAPS BY RALPH LAUREN. Cotton knit polo shirts for the young at heart. The casual status-looks most representative of the spirited all-American way of life. Designed with enduring style. Style that is confident, clean-lined, and most important, comfortable. Sporting colors, too. Sizes S-M-L. Each $21. From The Woodward Shops & Men, all stores.

James Langdon receives communion from Sister Joan Katherine.