

Center's arts and crafts students to show and sell

All Farmington Community Center students enrolled in craft or art classes during the 1980-81 sessions are eligible to participate in the Second Annual Student Art Show and Sale on May 8.

Jane Wiese, assistant director for the center, said, "Students are encouraged to enter three pieces which must be class projects or reflect techniques learned during the past year."

The works are to be hand-delivered to the center, 24705 Farmington Road by Monday, April 27 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. They will then be submitted to a selection committee who will review the pieces for display.

Mrs. Wiese asks that students clearly mark works they offer for sale, and explains that a student may choose to only display a treasured piece in the show.

"We are proud of the exceptional quality of our teaching staff, and their work will also be on display and offered for sale," Mrs. Wiese said, "and we are happy to share these works with the larger community."

Judy Antishin hosts potluck

Judy Antishin, popular cooking teacher and Farmington hostess, will bring a new concept to Farmington Community Center's series of cooking events on Monday, April 27.

Mrs. Antishin will present her "Gourmet Potluck and Recipe Exchange" from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tickets are $7 per person.

She will demonstrate a simplified gourmet recipe which will serve as the main course of the day's luncheon. It will be accompanied by a salad and beverage plus a tasting of each student's potluck offering.

"The lunch will be more than ample," Mrs. Antishin said, "and I know that everyone will go home with many new ideas to tempt their family."

She adds that each student will receive her gourmet recipe in printed form along with the complete recipes of the other class members. "It will be a mini-cookbook," she said.

She requests that all students call the center office at 477-8404 by Wednesday, April 22 with their recipe information to be prepared for printing.

Mrs. Antishin said that a recipe and a dish to pass is not mandatory. Everyone is invited to join the session.

Marge Chellstorp

Art classes start

Award-winning artist Marjorie Chellstorp offers "Drawing From Life" art classes 9:30-11:30 a.m. Fridays, beginning May 1 in Farmington Community Center.

A live model assists in sharpening the student's artistic abilities. No previous experience is needed to succeed in this charcoal drawing-from-life session.

Mrs. Chellstorp's credentials are impressive. She has won prizes in juried shows locally and on a national level. Her work is displayed in the collections of many large area corporations including Michigan Consolidated Gas, Campbell Ewald Advertising and the Ford Motor Co. at Renaissance Center.

Fee is $35. For registration information call the center at 477-8404.
