

UF volunteer dispells myths, stresses need for help

MRS. GERBIG, a long-time community activist who serves on numerous boards and committees, became involved with the United Foundation three years ago when a friend asked for help.

Among her committee work she's affiliated with the American Cancer Society and is a member of the board of directors for Marillac Hall, the Farmington Hills based home for unwed mothers, both assisted by the Torch Drive.

"It's exciting working on fund raising when I know what happens when the funds get put to work," Mrs. Gerbig said.

This year volunteers working through service clubs and local chambers of commerce plan to solicit 55,000 small businesses in the tri-county area. Last year only 7,000 businesses were tapped.

"That's where the push has to come from," she said.

A special gifts campaign will zero in on donors who give more than $300, giving them special recognition.

The tri-county area has been divided into three zones for fund soliciting: west, northeast and northwest. Every person in the region will receive a pledge card and letter in September and a followup phone call a few weeks later.

The northwest zone which includes most of Oakland County needs 400 volunteers to staff phone centers.

MOST OF Mrs. Gerbig's time now is spent recruiting volunteers. Things will slacken off a bit in the summer except for leadership meetings. In late August, it will be full steam ahead for the volunteers again through December.

"There's as much work in wrapup as in the time prior to the drive," she said.

"I was amazed when I first got involved to learn that 9,000 people in the city of Birmingham had used Torch Drive services," she said.

"Consider the number of kids in scouting, using agencies, and counseling services. There's lots around and available for us to use."

To volunteer help, call the Oakland County Torch Drive office at 646-6888.

Grants given for study of the aging at Madonna

Scholarship grants are available now in Madonna College for the first 60 persons who apply wishing to pursue studies of the aging.

Homemakers, retirees and professionals are all qualified. The scholarships cover most of the tuition costs in the one year certificate para-professional program in Aging and Mental Health.

Those completing the study will be qualified para-professionals to help promote health among the elderly.

The Gerontology Department at Madonna College, at 35600 Schoolcraft, Livonia, is the only Michigan College which trains undergraduates to work in community and hospital settings with the elderly.

Dr. Marianne Glazek and Patricia Harmon will take inquiries about the grant by calling them at 591-5095.

conformance with the proposed master plan revision" for the entire southwest quadrant, often called the "golden corridor."

THAT PROPOSED plan would include all types of zoning — even a planned residential development (PRD) category, which has not yet been adopted as a zoning classification.

Law asked what input township board members would have on the master plan update.

"This board has input only as residents of the township," said Clerk Betty Sue Dupree.

As a result of the rezoning vote, the Rosin property now can be developed with 13 acres for business and the balance in multiples with a density of nine units per acre.

Clair's property was rezoned at nine units per acre.

Law, Vaisala and Lobodocky objected to the higher density, preferring only six units to an acre.

Both properties will be considered transitional uses to the single family district to the east.

CITY OF FARMINGTON HILLS

SUMMARY OF PROCEEDINGS CITY COUNCIL MEETING JUNE 15, 1981
