Cream puffs make party an occasion

Venetian Cream, a new liqueur, is being introduced in this country. Purported to have been produced in Venice during the ninth century, it is a blending of fresh dairy cream, fine aged Italian brandy and "other natural ingredients."

It can be served straight up, on the rocks, or over ice cream for dessert. There also are suggestions for other uses and recipes with the liqueur as an ingredient.

A women's luncheon, an afternoon bridge, a baby shower for a friend — entertaining for these small but special occasions often leaves the hostess in a flurry about what to serve.

VENETIAN PUFFS

- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 6 egg yolks
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup Venetian Cream
- 8 large cream puffs

Chocolate Sauce recipe below)

Bring milk to a boil and set aside. In a medium-size bowl, beat egg yolks; add sugar and beat for four minutes. Add the flour to the egg yolk mixture, beating well. Add 1/2 cup of the hot milk and combine thoroughly. Then pour the egg mixture back into the hot milk, stirring constantly over low heat until thickened. Continued beating should remove any lumps that may develop. Remove from heat and stir in Venetian Cream. Cool before filling cream puff shells. Let guests apply their own chocolate sauce as it is passed separately. Makes 8 large puffs.

VENETIAN CHOCOLATE SAUCE

- 4 oz. semi-sweet chocolate
- 2 oz. unsweetened chocolate
- 6 tbsp. water
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 3 tsp. butter
- 1/2 cup Venetian Cream

Melt the two chocolates in the water over low heat, stirring constantly until smooth. Add the sugar, bring to a boil over low heat, stirring vigorously for one minute. Remove from heat. Add butter and stir until combined. Mix in Venetian Cream and serve warm. Makes 1 1/2 cups.

The smooth-as-butter pate is suggested as picnic fare, perfect for the tailgate party at the football game. Just spread it on country bread or crackers.

VENETIAN PATE

- 1/2 pound plus 4 tbsp. butter
- 1 lb. chicken livers, trimmed
- 1 large red onion, peeled and chopped
- 1/2 cup sour cream
- 1 1/2 tsp. cognac
- 1 1/2 tsp. Venetian Cream liqueur
- 1/2 tsp. allspice
- Salt and pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup pistachio nuts, chopped

Melt 4 tablespoons of butter in a large frying pan, add the chicken livers and saute until they are cooked through, about five minutes. Remove the livers with a slotted spoon and set aside. Cook the chopped onion in the same pan about three minutes, or until transparent.

Puree the livers and onions together in a food processor or a blender. Add the sour cream, cognac, liqueur, allspice and salt and pepper to taste. Puree again until well blended and smooth. Turn the mixture out onto a cookie sheet and spread with a spatula into a layer. Cover with wax paper and chill until slightly firm.

Cut the remaining 1/2 pound of butter into small pieces. Whip the butter until light and creamy in a food processor or blender. Add the chilled liver mixture, blending well for a few seconds. Fold in the pistachio nuts by hand. Spoon the mixture into decorative crocks, cover and refrigerate until firm. This pate keeps well for a good week in the refrigerator, but do not freeze. Makes about 3 1/2 cups.
