One super-facial view

Enough super-latives have been used now to make anything I say super-futious.

But a weekend which combined a return to the ice age with a continuous hot line to the Silverdome is likely to be remembered for a while. Even though the preference might be to forget it.

I'll REMEMBER a super-icy driveway that I slid down a super number of times Saturday with the same less-than-super result — the mailbox was always empty.

I'll recall too the super glare of the ice on all the subdivision roads, making venturing forth super-stupid if one didn't have to do so.

I'll think of the super amount of information I received by radio on what was not going on in Pontiac on Saturday, when what I wanted to know was what the super-weatherman had in store for us on Sunday.

I'll treasure the super feeling of accomplishment I had. I stayed home and managed to get the house pretty clean for the first time in weeks. I'll give a super spot in memory for our pleasant family gathering — to watch and com-

U-M Dearborn plans workshop for women

A Careers in Science Workshop for Women will be given Saturday, March 27, in the Fair Lane Conference Center on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

The workshop's goal is to give women information, support and technical skills so they may plan and pursue careers in science, said Mimi Singer, Women's Center coordinator.

Major fields to be covered in the day-long workshop are atmospheric science, behavioral and social sciences, biomedical, computer application, engineering and applied sciences and environmental sciences.

Skill and support workshops will include career planning, re-entry to education, interviews and strategies for getting ahead in the science field.

Featured speakers will be Betty M. Vetter, director of the Scientific Man-
