the guest list. "They are people who grew up with me — or us — and would be interested in being part of this, although Dana doesn't know them."

Except for paying part of the reception and buying liquor for the event, he's staying out of things. "I played my role several years ago," explained the Ohio native with a broad smile.

THE DEANES did discover Addison Oaks while searching for weeds and dead branches for a vase on the fireplace of their home in Beverly Hills. "We happened upon it, and it seemed like what they were looking for," recalled Mrs. Deane.

In a serious moment, Peter Deane talks about the pleasure of seeing his daughter marry someone he really likes.

"I've had a chance to get to know Kevin, and I'm really quite pleased. That's how I really feel," he said.

"What we see is the two of them in a real caring relationship. That's rare in this day," said Mrs. Deane, whose goal is to see that her daughter has a good time at the wedding reception. "I think the main point is to enjoy it," she said. "I hope they do. I'm going to."
