'Chapter Two' held over for shows through May 22

After a successful eight-week run, Komedy Players Dinner Theatre extends the popular Neil Simon comedy "Chapter Two" through May 22.

Komedy Players Dinner Theatre offers a cozy setting with white tablecloths, flowers and Broadway hit tunes for background music in Barnh's Welcome Mat in Allen Park.

It is operated by Jan and Bill Salisbury, a Farmington Hills couple who have put together a combination of food, atmosphere and theater at easily affordable prices.

The story of Simon's fast-moving comedy brings together Jennie, a recent divorcee, and George, a widower, through the persistent matchmaking of Leo, George's protective brother. In a zany subplot, Leo has a fling with Faye, Jennie's kookie friend.

The roles of Jennie and George are played by Jan Salisbury and Bill Moore, who return to Komedy Players stage after their success in the company's opening play, "My Heart Reminds Me."

The production is under the direction of Bill Salisbury.

The less-than-a-year-old dinner theater is at 5835 Allen Road. Tickets for the salad bar, dinner and show are $12.95 each on Fridays and $14.95 each on Saturdays. There is no tax, gratuities or parking charges.

Reservations may be made by calling the box office, 661-1383, any time.
