Ohio to the Soo in wheelchair

key people in the association, got some answers and then took it to the PVA board, which approved it in February.

SINCE THEN, the PVA has firmed up a route along major roads since wheelchairs aren't allowed on freeways.

The three will use specially built racing wheelchairs which are much lighter than standard wheelchairs. The route insures maximum exposure. They will start at the Ohio border, move up to the Detroit area on Telegraph Road and then travel along Jefferson Avenue to Woodward Avenue in downtown Detroit.

From there, the trio will move up Woodward through Pontiac and then through the center of the state.

What about the Mackinac Bridge? "We are working with bridge officials to see about us crossing," Doser said.

If they can't use the bridge, the three will cross the straits of Mackinac by ferry boat.

They hope to have a big welcoming party in Sault St. Marie in mid-July, Doser said.

Romney hosts Headlee party

Former Governor and Mrs. George Romney will host a "Meet Dick Headlee Night," Wednesday, April 28.

The "get acquainted" party for Dick Headlee, candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, will be held from 7-9 p.m. at Roma's of Bloomfield, 2101 S. Telegraph, in the Miracle Mile Shopping Center. There is no charge and the public is cordially invited.

Romney, who has endorsed Headlee, said the event would "allow Lenore and me the honor and pleasure of providing many people the opportunity to personally meet Dick and Mary Headlee."

They won't be alone on their route. Doser's pickup truck will be used as an escort vehicle.

THERE ARE a lot of business and personal preparations required for the trip, Sutton and Doser said.

Sutton, who competed last fall in the Detroit Free Press marathon, covering more than 26 miles, already is practicing 50 miles a day in his wheelchair to toughen his hands.

Although he is only 120 pounds, he is sports coordinator for the chapter, taking part in basketball, bowling and Michigan Wheelchair Association events.

Sutton does a lot of weightlifting and wheelchair racing.

Doser said the trio wants to make 30-50 miles a day on the trip, depending on the terrain. They will travel during daylight hours and staying in motels along the route.

The trip's estimated cost is $4,000 to $5,000, he said.

Part of the cost is the $659 lighter-weight race wheelchairs for the three men and a spare. Other costs are motel rooms, food, gasoline for the escort truck, and insurance coverage of $500,000 for others than themselves.

They contacted all the sheriff's departments along the route to be aware of any obstacles.

One sheriff Doser declined to identify invited the trio to stop in for coffee at his office during the trip.

But Doser questions if the sheriff's office is barrier-free to allow wheelchair users to get in and out.

The PVA hopes to defray some of the costs by selling business advertising on the side of the escort truck.

BUT MOST income is anticipated from the pledge campaign which opened several weeks ago.

With just flyers and pledge cards distributed, an estimated $1,200 has been promised to the group.

Pledges of 5 cents a mile represent a donation of $20 for the 400-mile trip. Persons can pledge from 5 cents to $1 a mile.
