

Anti-nuclear forces gain followers

a nuclear power plant has a "breach of containment" releasing radioactive particles, 450,000 persons would be killed in the comparable vicinity of Surrey, Va.

To put off planning because the possibility is too frightening to contemplate is an "ostrich-like response," says Phelps.

"People can go ahead and stick their heads in the sand and pretend it's not going to happen," Phelps says. "But we in Pennsylvania have been there, unprepared, and know how horrible it is."

Capt. Russ Conway, Farmington Hills' director of emergency planning, says the city has no specific plans for a nuclear power plant accident because the city is not in the primary danger zone.

But he produces a thick binder full of disaster plans that includes mass evacuation in the event of a nuclear accident. Such plans, says Conway, could easily be used in the event of a serious nuclear power plant accident such as a meltdown.

AN EMERGENCY requiring mass evacuation would send most residents of Novi, Wolverine Lake, Walled Lake, Witom, Franklin Beverly Hills, Lathrup Village, Southfield, Farmington and Farmington Hills northwest to the Michigan counties of Lake, Oseola and Mecosta.

Police would be posted at key expressway entrances and surface road intersections to route residents west on I-696 to exit 67, where traffic would proceed north on State Road 66 and State Road 20. From there, authorities in the host counties would fan residents out to temporary facilities.

Hospital patients as well as senior citizens who have no transportation could be boarded in various shelters in the city, says Conway, until the threat passed or transportation is found.

He shows a computer readout listing apartments, schools and businesses where persons could be held, for a short time, in basements or underground tunnels.

Included in the list of temporary fallout shelters are the Bonaventure Roller Rink, the Finnish Cultural Center and the Farmington Nursing Home. A tunnel at Mercy Center, the readout says, could house 390 persons.

Conway admits that despite all conceivable planning, persons would probably panic.

"If they're at work, they're going to have to wait to be reunited with their family," he says.

Because you care...

In a time of crisis, the family instinctively turns to the church and to friends, and to those institutions that most nearly reflect their own feelings.

The family that passes to mark the passing of one of their own is demonstrating one of our culture's noblest traditions.

we care.

It is called "Caring"—the reflection of a sincere desire to honor the memory of a loved one, and to offer help to those who live on. In this manner family and friends show that they care for one another.

And, in a like manner, the staff at McCabe seeks to provide a service that is first and foremost an exercise in caring. It governs the way we handle every detail. Because you care, we care.
