

Man charged in break-in attempt

A 22-year-old Detroit man was arrested following the report of an attempted break-in at Hunter's Grove condominiums Friday.

Ray Feldman, condominium manager, told police he returned home shortly after noon Friday 1982 find a man near his front door. Feldman said he asked the stranger what he was doing in the courtyard, according to police reports, and the man replied that he was looking for a lost dog.

Feldman noticed the man had a large screwdriver in his shirt pocket, police report, before he ran across the courtyard and hopped over a 4 1/2-foot wall.

As he walked to the front door of his condominium, Feldman noticed pry marks on the door frame and door. Police were called and alerted to the attempted break-in.

After describing the suspect, police later arrested Thomas David Bushey, 22, of Detroit, near Bond school. His car was found in the area and impounded by police.

Bushey pleaded innocent to the charge of attempted breaking and entering, a felony that carries a maximum fine of five years in jail upon conviction. He was arraigned May 1 by Judge Margaret Schaeffer and was held after failing to post 10 percent of a $1,000 bond.

Assault arrest at assay shop

A former employee of Farmington Assay, a rare coin and precious metal shop in Farmington, was arrested for assault and battery late last week in an incident involving one of the shop owners.

Herb W. Jones, 38, of Farmington Hills, called police to the shop at 1:51 p.m. during an argument with co-owners Vincent and Tony Martini.

Police Officer Carl Swanderski reports that as he entered the store he saw Jones striking Vincent Martini, causing a quarter-inch cut on his face.

Police said Jones had been drinking and demanded a seat that he owned that was in the store. A glass cabinet was broken in the tussle, according to Tony Martini, who told police Jones picked up a shard of glass and tried to stab his brother with it. Jones refused to make a statement without an attorney present. He will be arraigned on the charge later this month.

Conviction on the misdemeanor charge of assault and battery carries a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail and a $500 fine.

Car windows shot out

Eleven cars had their windows shot out with a pellet gun Sunday night in the city of Farmington.

Sgt. Norman Maddison, one of the victims of the vandalism spree, said the incidents were found by police on patrol 12:12 a.m. Monday morning.

Four cars were hit on the 21000 block of Chestnut, one car was hit on the 33000 block of Maple, two cars in the 23000 block of Hayden were hit, along with one car on Cloverdale near Frederick and two cars on Manning Street.
