40 acres at Maple and Middlebelt roads in West Bloomfield.

Five years ago, Blake's proposal for a cluster development on the same 40 Equestrian Estates subdivision in West Bloomfield and lock a gift horse in the mouth.

To help buyers live up to the subdivision's name, developer-builder Robert Blake will be giving away thoroughbred horses. "The first new estate owner also gets a 1982 Ford Mustang," he said.

But the five-seven acre lots will cost you from $154,000 to $192,000. When you build, chances are the home will be worth about $300,000.

"We're going California style," said Mr. Blake, who has been building in California for the past five years. He never cease. Building is down even in Orange abandoned his dream of developing the County in Los Angeles."

"THERE WAS a different economy when you build, chances are the home will be worth about $300,000."

Now Blake's new venture, providing an average of six acres per lot, is acceptable to the neighbors, he said.

The township planning commission rejected Blake's proposal back then.

Symphony hosts Tally fundraiser
