Headlee vs. Blanchard: Who should provide jobs

Both major gubernatorial candidates agree that jobs for Michigan residents are the governor's top priority, but the disagreement occurs over who should provide the employment opportunities.

Before a record 2,800-person crowd
Monday as, the Economic Club of De-troit luncheon in Cobo Hall, Republican Richard Headlee and Democrat James Blanchard made their pitches for gov-

"We have to provide jobs in the private sector. I believe in private-sector solutions," said Headlee, the Farmington Hills insurance executive.

FOUR-TERM Congressman Blanchard, of Pleasant Ridge, countered with his ideas for governmental programs to help rescue the state's econograms to neip rescue he states a content.

Blanchard reminded voters that Michigan could not rely on the federal government for financial help. He cited his work on the Chrysler guaranteed-loan program, which saved 100,000 jobs, as evidence that he has experi-ence building coallillons.

HEADLER AGRED that Blanchard had experience in government but called it "the wrong kind."

"The last place I would go to for help is the Democratic majority of the louse of Representatives for accounting methods," Headlees and.

Headlees presented his 10-point plan cailing for no new taxes, revising the single-business tax, improving unemployment insurance and workers' compensation, conducting an operations audit of each state department, developing a strategic plan for agriculture and

"We won't need a tax increase for any of this. We have to lighten our belts and bring government into competitive parity with other states," he added.

"I'm concerned about what women are asying about me — that I don't support them. Forty percent of my managerial staff (at Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance) are women.

"There are two Republican senators, and the only woman Supreme Court justice is a Republican. The Republican Party is the party for women," Headlee said.

ANOTHER MAJOR difference pe-tween the candidates, Headlee noted, is their ideas about how to get unem-ployed persons back to work. Blanchard aims at the person to be while Headlee targets the employer.

"Eighty percent of the minorities in this state can't get on the first rung of the economic ladder. I'm proposing 11,000 tax credit to go to each employ-er for each person he hires, to simulate jobs," Headlee said.

But Blanchard called his opponent's plan more Resignomics, with benefits for the wealthy.

"Voters have a clear choice between an active economic program or more... Reganomic. You have a choice, be-tween a candidate who makes govern-ment work or one with no experience in government. I think using the human resource is the only way we can work together," Blanchard said.

The problem is very common:
When a furnace, boiler or water
