Community gardens growing popular

There has been a survey by the Gallup/Gardens for All organization showing that 53 percent of American households grow some of their own produce this summer. The survey showed that the respondents wanted their communities to set aside permanent sites for community vegetable gardens.

Are you listening Birmingham? The survey showed that gardening appeals to all income levels. We knew that all along, but it didn't have the prestige of the Gallup poll. Children in Japan are gathering seeds from their flowering cherry trees to be sent to the United States. In exchange, the Japanese children would like youngsters here to send them seed and budwood from our spring-flowering dogwood. This is being sponsored by our National Arboretum. Director Marc Cathey has asked the American Nurserymen to assist in the program. The first cherry tree from Japan arrived in 1876. Those who wish to cooperate in this program should contact the Dogwood Exchange, National Arboretum, 3501 York Ave., N.E., Washington, D.C. 20002. This is the time of year when you see almanacs which are filled with forecasts for 1983. They're interesting. Baer's has been circulated for 158 years. It is an agricultural almanac that tells about things like making skin den it is important to destroy the current foliage. It may be harboring the iris borer. The larvae hatch early in the spring having been deposited as eggs on the foliage of the previous year. Borers tunnel into the rhizomes of the garden lore, future weather and short cuts in gardening. It also has Canadian coverage. For $1.50 you can be the family prophet. It's available from John Baer's Sons, Lancaster, Pa. Some of our readers are distressed about the sudden needle drop on their pines, fir and arborvitae. Don't worry, they're just shedding their oldest needles which is normal. Your evergreens will look better in the spring. This time of year we often find our house is hosting a cricket. They are looking for a winter residence. They like to eat fabrics so eliminating them is very important. This warning is given because so many of you have country or lake second homes. Crickets sing by rubbing their wings together. If you have invaders, spray around the baseboards, doors, porches, closets and such with diazinon or malathion. Crickets like bed blankets, clothing hung in closets and piles of soiled materials. If you have irises in your flower garden and cause them to rot. You can promote the health of your irises by cleaning them up this fall. Gardeners were treated recently to the state orchid show at Tel-Twelve Mall. The spacious lounge is constantly available for horticultural displays. There were about 50 displays of orchids in vases and native habitats. We are getting many recruits with an orchid interest from our reading public. Newcomers to orchid growing are invited to the orchid group meeting at 2:30 p.m. Sunday Nov. 21 at First Presbyterian Church, 529 Hendrie, Royal Oak.
