Song and dance stars will perform in the Israeli Chassidic Festival at the Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit.

Jewish center hosting Israeli festival of song

A production of song, dance and music performed by Israeli stars will be presented at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 at the Jewish Community Center of Metropolitan Detroit in West Bloomfield.

Admission is $5 for members, $6 for nonmembers.

The festival orginated in 1969 as a contest for the best music set to Biblical verses. Ever since, composers from all over the world have entered their works in competition. Israeli performers present these songs to the people of Israel who select the winners. The group then sets out on a world tour to introduce the winning songs.

This year, for the first time, the Israeli people will not be the sole judges of the competition but will share the judging with audiences throughout Europe, Canada and 57 cities in the United States. At each performance, the competing songs will be judged by the audience.

Upon the festival's return to Israel, a concluding ceremony will take place in Jerusalem, where the winning songs will be announced and awarded in accordance with the ratings obtained throughout the tour.

Second runs

Tom Panzenhagen

"The Ipcress File" (1965), noon today on Ch. 50. Originally 108 minutes.

This first film from the Len Deighton series of spy thrillers is the best. Michael Caine's Harry Palmer is a no-frills secret agent who still manages his share of thrills and spills, but the story and action are far more believable than the James Bond and "Our Man Flint" flicks that were popular at the same time. Its plot is also simpler than in the followup "Funeral in Berlin," and the pace of the film much faster. Sue Lloyd and Gordon Jackson also star.

Rating: $2.95.

"Godspell" (1973), 2:30 Thursday night on Ch. 4. Originally 103 minutes.

Any similarity bewteen "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ Superstar" on a storyline level is purely intentional. Any similarity between the two in terms of effectiveness and success is purely coincidental. While "Superstar" rocks an audience both musically and stylistically, "Godspell" lulls viewers to sleep with ponderous performances and direction.

Rating: $1.

"The Missiles of October" (1974), midnight Sunday on Ch. 4. Originally 100 minutes.

Maybe the best thing that can be said for "Missiles" is that it maintains a high level of suspense from start to finish even though we all know how it's going to end. Based on the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, "Missiles of October" is a spellbinding drama starring William DeVane as President Kennedy, Martin Sheen as Attorney General Bobby Kennedy and Howard DaSilva as Soviet Premier Khrushchev. The characterizations are vivid and the dialogue riveting.

Rating: $3.30.

"Going My Way" (1944), in two parts at 1 p.m. Monday and Tuesday on Ch. 50. Originally 130 minutes.

Too-ra-Loo-ra-Loo-ra. Believe it or not, film critic Otis Ferguson saw "Going My Way" and wrote that it was incongruous to cast crooner Bing Crosby as a priest. It's almost hard to picture him without the vestal garments now. Barry Fitzgerlad, on the other hand, has always personified everyone's image of a padre, and here he teams with Bing for a convincing performance and touching film. The plot — with Bing reforming a youth gang, rescuing the parrish and preserving the dignity of the aging, outgoing priest — may sound like a bit much, but Leo McCarey's direction is spirited and never lingers on the sentimental. Gene Lockhart and Frank McHugh also star.

Rating: $3.50.
