

New Pontiac 2000 gets 52 mpg

The Pontiac 2000 (right) has become the first GM gasoline-powered production vehicle to break the 50-mile-per-gallon barrier with approved EPA ratings of 31 for city driving and 52 for highway driving. The 2000 also comes in a station wagon model, which gets EPA ratings of 28 and 46. Pontiac 6000 STE (below) debuts in 1983 as a world-class performance sedan. The STE, which is available in a four-door sedan only, has a 130-horsepower, V-6, two-barrel engine as its standard power train.
