When David Cameron of Livonia calls the Dairy Council of Michigan and asks to talk to the prettiest girl there, the receptionists know he he is talking about his wife, Irene, the council's director of communications.

Still lovebirds after nearly 35 years, the Camerons say their marraige is successful because of their honesty with each other.

Neither one holds in feelings, they said, so there's no chance for anger to grow and fester.

"When we fight, it happens right then," said Cameron, a sales repre-sentative for Korest-Peterson Co. in Detroit and a Livonia school board trustee. "We get it done and over with."

The couple met as freshmen in the Slippery Rock State College dining room in Slippery Rock, Pa. Each was 19. They found during a two-year courtship that that they shared many of the same philosophies and goals, which they dicussed in depth.

The both believed in commitment in marriage. "I think you should stay in there and fight and dig," Mrs. Cameron said.

The Camerons also share an importcouple are enjoying what they call their second honeymoon.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer David and Irene Cameron share a ant ingredient in a successful marraige — friendship. "He always has said I'm his best friend," Mrs. Cameron said.

And, now that their children — David, 28, and Wendy, 23 — are adults, the Carved English Wedding Bands, Hallmarked in the Old World Tradition of Quality.

