

State Litter Harvest Is Mighty Interesting

LANSING Twelve diapers, 11 strands of wire, 10 towels, nine shirts, eight dead rats, seven stockings, six hats, five pairs of glasses, four license plates, three bed springs, two baby pacifiers and one rusty bucket with a hole in the bottom. No partridges or pear trees, but one Christmas tree, a pheasant and four dead owls. Also an old washing machine.

a bank money bag, a nightgown, a photograph of a nude woman, a couple of auto batteries, some egg carton filters and a set of dentures. That's a sample, and an actual count, of what maintenance crews of 29 state highway departments harvested in a national study of highway litter. The Highway Research Board of Washington, D. C., made the study at the request of Keep America Beautiful, Inc. THE MICHIGAN Department of State Highways, a participant, took inventory of litter collected at 10 widely scattered sites selected by the Highway Research Board. Each was two-tenths of a mile long. Some were in urban and some in rural areas. Some were freeways and others were two-lane highways.

Two pick-ups were made, one month apart. In the first national pick-up maintenance men retrieved an average of 3,279 items per mile, or nearly two items per yard. The average on the second pick-up was 1,304 items. The accumulation in heavily traveled areas was much larger. Fifty-nine per cent of the discarded items were made of paper. Sixteen per cent were cans, three-fourths of them beer cans. Six per cent were glass bottles and jars, six per cent plastic items and the rest miscellaneous items ranging from tires to table legs to toothbrushes. THE STATE Highway Department will spend more than $1 million this year to collect trash.
