

Knits Year's cool investment

Travel agent Lisa Baxter travels into fall with color splicing in brown and black. Her slim and tapered trousers, $88, are from Special Lady.

There's big news in knits for fall.

Sweater knits and jerseys are important, whether it's daytime or evening.

The sweater is basic, but coats, jackets and dresses translate into important knit items, which are often coordinated — remember that word — together.

Sweaters come in all lengths, from pencil-slim jackets over equally slim skirts to chin-hugging, big collar, fur spliced great sweaters.

The glitter sweater goes to the cocktail hour over pleated and cuffed man-tailored gray flannel trousers reminiscent of '40s Hollywood. Some come with lavish layerings of fur cascading from shoulder to elbow on one or both sleeves.

From bright and bold to classic, knits are one of the great investment items of the year.

Shirley Becker is a professional model who knows the value of knits for evening. She wears a combination of textures with angora sleeves and a flat knit skirt, $328. Special Lady.

Emphasis TAILORED PUMPS

They're classic, smart, but this year they're more than just traditional. What's new is the colors, the styles, the poise in any situation. They're able to step with success during office hours then turn on the charm when you take the clients to dinner. ANNE KLEIN recognizes the beauty of tailored pumps. Here's a favorite, finished two ways. Smooth kid leather in teal, grey or black. Cobra print in taupe or wine. Both on a low sculptured heel. Sizes 5½-9, 10M; 7-9N, 10OS. In Woodward Shop Shoes, Northland, Eastland, Oakland, Ann Arbor, Fairlane, Twelve Oaks.
