Aspiring authors could win funds

Aspiring high school authors will again have an opportunity to test their writing skills in the Eighth Annual Manuscript Day Competition sponsored by the Wayne State University English Department.

Competition is open to junior and senior students in all Michigan high schools — public, parochial and private.

Rules of the competition call for students to enter their manuscripts through their high school English departments in one of four categories: short fiction, drama, essay (three to 15 pages) or poetry (25-50 lines). All works are eligible for entry unless they have already earned recognition outside the writer's high school. WSU faculty members will serve on the panel of judges.

First prize in the contest will be a $7,700 tuition award (over four years) to Wayne State University. There will be five runner-up prizes of $700 tuition awards ($350 per term) to Wayne State University.

Further information may be obtained by writing to The Manuscript Day Committee, English Department, Wayne State University, Detroit 48202; or by calling 577-3487.
