

Cooking With The Chorus

Cooking up a feast of song, Farmington Community Chorus members Ginny Lundquist (at left), Joy Messing, Jim Miller, David Bolla and Sue McLean look forward to serving a musical menu of holiday tunes. "Cooking With The Chorus" begins at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 3, in Harrison Centre for the Performing Arts, 29995 12 Mile. The concert is presented in menu form that includes appetizers, entrees and dessert. Tickets are $2.50, or $1.50 for seniors and students at the door.

Preschoolers offered holiday class sessions

As the holidays approach, New Morning School is offering classes for preschoolers so parents can have a few hours alone for holiday preparations. With the children occupied in Christmas cooking and crafts, parents can have a few hours to themselves.

Cooking for preschoolers will meet from 1-3 p.m. on Friday afternoons for three weeks beginning Dec. 2. Children will learn how to follow recipe cards to make individual amounts of various treats. Christmas cookies, salads, fruit shakes, and pancakes will be some of the foods each child will prepare. The class fee is $18.

Marilyn Romack, preschool teacher, is looking for one parent who would like to assist in each class. The child would attend for free.

Two classes will be offered for preschoolers, ages 3-5. Holiday crafts will meet from 1-3 p.m. Wednesdays for four weeks beginning Nov. 30. Preschoolers will be making gifts and wrapping presents for family and friends. Christmas crafts and ornaments will also be made by the children. The class fee is $24 for the four sessions and includes all materials.

New Morning School is located on Haggerty Road, north of Schoolcraft Road in Plymouth Township. Call Elaine Yagiela, director, at 420-3331 to register.
