WASTING LIGHT

You waste your current and lose light when you allow your lamps to accumulate dust. You will have more and better light if you keep them clean.

You also waste light when you use lamps that have become blackened from too long service. Lamps in this condition may give you no more than half the amount of light you ought to have. You pay for the wasted current, however.

You need not bear this loss. You are always welcome to new lamps (40, 60 and 100 watt sizes) in exchange for your blackened, or burnt-out, lamps, without charge.

Bring them in our office and get new ones in exchange.
