

Area Mourning Austin Grant

AUSTIN T. GRANT

Funeral services for broadcast newsman Austin T. Grant were held Friday in Hecney-Sundquist Funeral Home, Farmington, with burial following in Glen Eden Memorial Park, Livonia.

Grant, a former Livonia city councilman and one-time Farmington resident, died Tuesday in a Detroit hospital. He was a Belleville resident at the time of his death at the age of 64.

To the nation he was known as the syndicated radio voice of "Cars and Comments," but he had also been active in local affairs.

GRANT WAS allied with former Livonia Mayor William Brashear at a time when the young city was trying to come out from under a cloud of rumors of alleged murders at the Detroit Race Course, hooded witnesses at police hearings and other tales.

He was elected to the council in 1956 and served until 1962, the last four years as council president. He helped lay the foundation of the present, aggressive recreation program.

Grant lived in Farmington from 1944 to 1953.

GRANT JOINED the staff of WJW, then became a radio news commentator on WXYZ in 1946.

In 1949, he moved to CKLW and in 1952 became news director of the station. In July, 1965, Grant established the United Broadcast News Service in Detroit.

During his long career, Grant served as local president of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists. He was a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers and Sigma Delta Chi.
